DONALD MAKING CASE FOR ROOKIE OF THE YEAR

DT Aaron Donald

Rams DT Aaron Donald arrived in St. Louis with a trophy case full of awards he collected at the University of Pittsburgh. Now, he's making a strong case to add to that collection.

Donald should garner plenty of consideration for NFL Defensive Rookie of the Year as he builds on a remarkable season. He collected his fifth sack of the season last week and leads all NFL rookies in the category. Coaches have credited him with a team-high 15 tackles for loss. He also has 18 quarterback pressures and nine QB hits.

This week, Donald and the Rams wrap up a run of three-consecutive AFC West opponents as they host the Oakland Raiders at the Edward Jones Dome on Sunday. Sunday's contest will be the 13th regular-season meeting between the Rams and Raiders with Oakland maintaining an 8-4 lead in the all-time series.

ONE HILL OF A GUY

The last time Shaun Hill took the turf at the Edward Jones Dome, he turned in a nearly flawless performance in leading his team to victory. He hopes to repeat that feat at the Rams return home Sunday.

In the team's Week 11 win over Denver, Hill completed 20-of-29 passes for 220 yards and touchdown with no interceptions. His scoring strike came on a 63-yard bomb to WR Kenny Britt, and he led six total scoring drives.

QB Shaun Hill

This week against Oakland, Hill is scheduled to make his 31st start of his NFL career. He entered the league as an undrafted rookie free agent with the Minnesota Vikings in 2002 and made stops in San Francisco and Detroit before signing with the Rams as a free agent last offseason.

Hill originally signed to back up Sam Bradford, but when the Rams' starting signal caller suffered a season-ending knee injury during the preseason, Hill moved to the top of the depth chart. In the Rams' season opener, Hill suffered a quad strain that sidelined him, and in his absence, Austin Davis performed well enough to retain the job.

Prior to Week 11, Rams Head Coach Jeff Fisher decided to return to his crafty veteran, and the moved paid off with a win over the Broncos.

Hill's career numbers include 6,880 passing yards with a 61.8 completion percentage. He's thrown 43 touchdown passes with 26 interceptions.

WAR RAM EAGLE

The Rams have cracked the 100-yard mark on the ground in each of the last two weeks. They rushed for 131 yards as a team in a Week 11 win over Denver, their highest single-game output this season, and Robinson had a big part in that.

OL Greg Robinson

Robinson started at left guard in Weeks 6-8, but following a season-ending injury to Jake Long, the Auburn product moved outside and inherited the position at which he was drafted to secure for the long term.

Robinson made his first NFL start in Week 6 against San Francisco and coaches gave him positive reviews after lining up against 49ers Pro Bowl DT Justin Smith throughout the evening. The Rams averaged nearly four yards per carry in Robinson's first start.

Last fall, Auburn literally ran its way to an SEC championship and appearance in the national title game. As a team, the Tigers averaged an NCAA-best 328.3 yards per game on the ground.

Robinson and Auburn/Rams teammate Tre Mason were at the heart of that attack. In 14 games last season, coaches credited Robinson with 130 "knockdown" blocks, an average of more than nine per game as Auburn sparred with some of the best defenses in the country. Robinson was named First-Team All-SEC and was a Second-Team All-American by the Associated Press.

BIG CATCH BRITT

The Rams didn't make a ton of moves in veteran free agency this spring, but did add one player who's provided some big plays at the wide receiver position.

Last week, Kenny Britt caught two passes for 37 yards. In the team's win over Denver a week earlier, he enjoyed his best game as a Ram as he caught four passes for 128 yards, including a 63-yard touchdown that put St. Louis up 10-0 in the first quarter.

WR Kenny Britt

The Denver game marked Britt's eighth 100-yard game of his career and first as a Ram. Twice this season, Britt has provided the Rams lone touchdown in Rams victories.

Britt has caught 27 passes for 477 yards and three touchdowns this season. He ranks second among Rams in receptions and leads the team in receiving yardage.

For his career, Britt has averaged 15.9 yards per reception. He's at 17.7 this season as seven of his 27 catches have gone for 25 or more yards.

Britt's sixth NFL season is his first in St. Louis. He spent his first five professional campaigns with the Tennessee Titans, where he played three seasons under Rams Head Coach Jeff Fisher.

In addition to what he's brought on the field, Britt's veteran presence has been a welcomed one to the young receiver group. His experience is evident as his career totals are significantly higher than the other five members of the team's receiving group.

Career Totals, Current Rams Receivers

Player	Rec.	Yards	Yards/Rec.	TDs
K. Britt	184	2,927	15.9	22
D. Williams	107	1,327	12.4	5
C. Givens	84	1,361	16.2	3
T. Austin	62	593	9.6	4
S. Bailey	32	401	12.5	1
WAR RAM EAGLE, II

RB Tre Mason didn't make his NFL debut until Week 6 but he's worked his way into the starting lineup and has had an impact on the Rams' offense.

Mason has started each of the last four games and enjoyed his first 100-yard rushing performance of his career in the team's Week 11 over Denver. He gained 113 yards on 29 carries, and his attempts were the most by a Rams running back in a game this season. Making the performance more impressive is the fact that Denver enter the game as the NFL's top-ranked run defense.

RB Tre Mason

On the season, Mason is averaging 4.1 yards per carry - 445 yards on 108 attempts. In the Rams' Week 7 win over Seattle, Mason rushed 18 times for 85 yards and scored his first NFL touchdown as he helped St. Louis defeat the defending Super Bowl champions. He's added eight receptions on the year in addition to his role as a ball carrier.

Mason joined the Rams in May when St. Louis selected him in the third round. As a junior at Auburn, he was the SEC's leading rusher. Mason finished fifth in the nation with 1,816 rushing yards, and his 23 rushing touchdowns were tied for third most in the country. Mason was the SEC Offensive Player of the Year, was named First-Team All-SEC and was a finalist for the Heisman Trophy.

SIR LANCE (SCORES) A LOT

With touchdown catches in three-con-secutive weeks from Weeks 6-8, TE Lance Kendricks is tied for the team lead with four scores this season.

Kendricks' one-yard score against Kansas City in Week 8 was his 12th career touch-down catch. He's tied for fifth in franchise history among tight ends in the category.

Kendricks caught a four-yard touchdown pass rom Austin Davis with 5:36 remaining in the fourth quarter in the team's Week 7 win over Seattle. The touchdown allowed the Rams to answer after Russell Wilson and company had pulled to within two points at 21-19. Kendricks pushed the St. Louis lead back to nine, 28-19.

TE Lance Kendricks

The third-year tight end also scored in Week 6 when he caught a 22-yard pass from Davis. Kendricks now has 12 career touchdowns, including four this season. He's totaled 22 catches for 186 yards to go along with his four scores in 2014.

Throughout his four seasons in St. Louis, Kendricks has been a reliable target. He finished the 2012 season with 42 receptions for 519 yards and four touchdowns. His 519 receiving yards were at the time the most by a Rams tight end since the team moved to St. Louis in 1995. Teammate Jared Cook surpassed those totals in 2013.

BENNY'S SPECIAL EFFORT

RB Benny Cunningham has been a jack of all trades for the Rams this season.

Last week in San Diego, he caught two passes and rushed four times for 18 yards in addition to his role on special teams.

On the season, Cunningham has 210 yards and three touchdowns on the ground. He's caught 28 passes - second most among Rams - for 225 yards and handles kick return duties.

In the team's win over Seattle in Week 7, Cunningham seemingly did it all. In the first quarter, he returned a kickoff 75 yards to give the Rams the ball at the Seattle 31 yard line. Six plays later, St. Louis scored its first touchdown of the day on a Tre Mason six-yard run.

Later in the game, Cunningham caught a shovel pass from Austin Davis and plowed his way forward for a five-yard touchdown. It marked the third consecutive week that Cunningham has found the end zone.

He saved the best for last. With St. Louis clinging to a two-point lead with 2:55 remaining, Cunningham slipped out of the backfield from his personal protector position in a punt formation. He caught a short pass from P Johnny Hekker and turned it upfield for an 18-yard gain. The first down allowed the Rams to run out the clock and preserve the victory.

On the season, Cunningham ranks fifth in the NFL in kickoff return aver-age.

2014 NFL Leaders, Kickoff Return Average	Average
1. Adam Jones, CIN	31.8
2. Jacoby Jones, BAL	31.2
3. Jarvis Landry, MIA	30.7
4. Knile Davis, KC	29.0
5. Benny Cunningham, STL	28.9

WHAT'S COOK-IN'?

Since arriving in St. Louis last spring, TE Jared Cook has been a reliable target for Rams quarterbacks.

Last week, Cook caught three passes for 27 yards. With 37 receptions on the season, Cook leads the Rams in the category. His 473 receiving yards rank second to Kenny Britt, trailing him by just four yards for the team high.

Cook has caught at least one pass in all 27 games he's been a member of the Rams. He's recorded a reception in each of his last 43 games he's appeared in, dating back to his time in Tennessee.

TE Jared Cook

In Week 3, Cook caught seven passes for 75 yards, which tied his highest single-game receptions total since joining the Rams. He led the Rams with 74 yards in the team's Week 7 win over Seattle.

In his first year in St. Louis, Cook set a new record for most receiving yards in a season by a Rams tight end. Cook led the Rams in both receptions (51) and receiving yards (671) in 2013. Teammate Lance Kendricks set the previous mark for St. Louis tight ends last year with 519 yards. Cook bested that number and then topped the all-time franchise record held by Mike Barber (657 in 1983).

In his Rams debut, Cook caught seven passes for 141 yards and two touchdowns in the team's Week 1 win. His 141 yards are the most by a tight end in a single game in franchise history. Cook broke a record previously held by Pete Holohan, who had 126 yards on Dec. 11, 1988 against Atlanta.

Cook's Week 1 performance was his second-highest single-game total of his career. He had 169 in a 2011 game against Jacksonville. Cook's 169 yards are a Titans single-game record for a tight end as well.

A GOOD START

The Rams have been among the NFL's best out early in games this season.

In nearly half of their games this sea-son (5), the Rams have scored on their first offensive possession. Only three NFL teams have scored more points on their opening drive this season than the Rams.

In the team's last home game, the Rams took the opening kickoff and drove 61 yards in 11 plays to set up a 37-yard field goal by Greg Zuerlein. On four other occasions this season, St. Louis has scored touchdowns on their first drive of the game.

Offensive Coordinator Brian Schottenheimer

The Rams' 31 points on opening drives are tied for fourth most in the NFL this season.

RUSHING ROBERT

Prior to the Rams' Week 7 win over Seattle, DE Robert Quinn used the analogy that it only takes a snowflake to start an avalanche, referring to his hopes that the Rams would get their pass rush going one sack at a time.

DE Robert Quinn

Quinn recorded his first sack of the season that week, and he added five in the three weeks that followed to give him 6.0 on the season.

While he's been held without a sack the last two weeks, Quinn's rush ability has still impacted games. He has 10 QB pressures in the last two weeks and six QB hits over that time.

Quinn has developed into one of the NFL's top defenders. Along with his 6.0 sacks, coaches have credited the 2012 first-round pick with 25 QB pressures and 18 QB hits through 11 games. He's also tallied 12 tackles for loss.

Coaches have credited Quinn with three forced fumbles this year, including one in the team's win over San Francisco that was recovered by DE Eugene Sims and set up the lone St. Louis touchdown of the day. Since the start of last season, Quinn's nine forced fumbles are tied with Rams LB Alec Ogletree for the most by anyone in the NFL.

Quinn is building off his breakout season of 2013 that saw him post one of the best seasons by a Rams defender in team history.

Quinn's 19.0 sacks were second best in the NFL a year ago, just a half sack off of league leader Robert Mathis (19.5). Quinn also finished second to Mathis in forced fumbles, as Quinn had seven to Mathis' eight.

His 19.0 sacks set a new franchise record, topping Kevin Carter's 17.0 in 1999. Quinn had at least one sack in 11 of 16 games this season, and he had five multi-sack games, including three contests in which he recorded 3.0 sacks.

BEST IN CLASS

DE Robert Quinn

For teams in need of impact pass rushers, the 2011 NFL Draft was certainly the place to find one.

In the top 16 picks, there were seven "front seven" players selected. Six of them have at least 25 career sacks, and five of them have at least 30.

With the 14th pick, the Rams were fortunate to snag DE Robert Quinn, who boasts 40.5 career sacks. Quinn came off the board after Von Miller (45 sacks), J.J. Watt (46) and Aldon Smith (44), and each player has made a name for himself.

Quinn certainly stood out among his peers in 2013 as he led the NFC with 19.0 sacks. Since coming into the NFL in 2011, Quinn is tied for sixth in sacks. Since the start of the 2012 season, only Watt has more sacks than Quinn.

*2011 First Round Pick

LUCKY NUMBER 13

DT Aaron Donald made his mark on college football for finding his way into the opposing backfield. His NFL career is off to a strong start in that regard as well.

DT Aaron Donald

Last week, Donald recorded his fifth sack of the season and now leads all NFL rookies in the category.

In addition to his sack, Donald posted two tackles for loss to give him a team-high 15 on the season. Through 11 games, Donald has 5.0 sacks, 18 QB pressures and eight QB hits.

The Rams felt fortunate to land Donald with the 13th pick in May's draft. As a senior in 2013, Donald received a host of honors. In addition to being named First-Team All-American and First-Team All-ACC, Donald was the Chuck Bednarik Award and Bronco Nagurski Awards, both of which honor the national defensive player of the year in college football.

Donald also won the Outland Trophy, which goes to college football's top interior lineman, and the Lombardi Award, which recognizes the country's top player among college defensive linemen and linebackers.

According to StatsPass.com, Donald is tied for second in the the NFL in with nine "stuffs," which is classified as tackles for loss on run plays, in addition to leading all NFL rookies in sacks.

BLOCK PARTY

S T.J. McDonald has been a big part of the defense since his arrival as a third round pick in 2013.

S T.J. McDonald lays out to block a punt earlier this season against Tampa Bay. McDonald has been a key asset on both defense and special teams this season.

Through 11 games, he's third among Rams with 93 tackles and is close to reaching the 100 tackle mark for the first tim in his career.

McDonald has been on the field for every Rams defensive snap this season and has a sack and four passes defensed on the year.

McDonald blocked both a punt and a field goal in the team's win in Tampa Bay in Week 2. As a team, the Rams hadn't blocked a punt and field goal in the same game since December of 1979. His Week 2 pair were the first blocks of McDonald's career.

Following the blocked punt, the Rams kicked a field goal of their own. The blocked field goal took potential points off the board for Tampa Bay and led to a field goal drive for the Rams, meaning McDonald's two big special teams plays resulted in at least a nine-point swing in what resulted in a two-point game.

MAN IN THE MIDDLE

If you want to find Rams MLB James Laurinaitis on the football field, one can often simply follow the ball because the fifth-year pro seems to always be around it.

Laurinaitis posted 15 tackles last week to give him 118 on the season. He's now reached the 100-tackle mark in each of his six NFL campaigns.

A captain on the Rams defense, Laurinaitis finished the 2013 season with 144 stops, his fifth 100-tackle season in as many years in the NFL. His toughness and leadership were key to a Rams defense that finished in the top 10 against the run for the first time since 2001.

LB James Laurinaitis

Laurinaitis has proven to be a valuable defender against both the run and the pass. He recorded his second sack of the season in the team's win over Denver in Week 11 and has six QB pressures. Last season, he also posted two interceptions and eight pass breakups.

Since 2009, only three linebackers - DeAndre Levy, Paul Posluszny and Sean Lee - have more interceptions than Laurinaitis' nine. Also since 2009, the year the Rams made Laurinaitis a second-round pick, he's the only player in the NFL with 14 or more sacks and nine or more interceptions.

Laurinaitis now has 851 career tackles, and he's closing in on Hall of Famer Merlin Olsen, the franchise's all-time leading tackler.

BULLDOG 'BACKER

As a rookie, Alec Ogletree led the Rams in tackles and provided St. Louis with a playmaking presence as he led the team with 155 tackles.

"Tree" has filled up the stat sheet in 2014 as well. He posted 14 tackles against San Diego to give him 117 on the season, second most among Rams.

Ogletree also has two interceptions this season. He has nine career forced fumbles, which is tied with Robert Quinn for the most among all NFL defenders since the start of last season.

Ogletree stepped into the Rams' starting lineup from the get go as a rookie and he's

LB Alec Ogletree

RETURN TO SENDER

Rams CB Janoris Jenkins has a knack for finding the end zone. In fact, no defender in football has found it more since Jenkins entered the NFL.

Last week, Jenkins intercepted a Philip Rivers pass and returned it 99 yards for a touchdown. It was the fifth time Jenkins has returned a pick for a score during his career, which ties him for the most such plays in Rams history.

CB Janoris Jenkins

Ed Meador (1959-70) and LeRoy Irvin (1980-89) each had five career interception returns for touchdowns. In just three seasons, Jenkins has already equaled Irvin and Meador in interceptions returned for touchdowns. He has seven total interceptions for his career.

In Week 3 against Dallas, Jenkins intercepted Tony Romo and returned it 25 yards for a touchdown.

As a rookie, Jenkins recovered a fumble in the end zone in an overtime win over San Francisco. That gives Jenkins six total defensive touchdowns during his two plus seasons in the NFL, which is the most defensive scores by any player during that time frame.

Jenkins also forced a fumble last week in San Diego deep in Chargers territory that saved a potential touchdown.

PUSH 'EM BACK

The Rams have been among the NFL's best at creating negative plays on defense this season.

St. Louis has tallied 78 total negative plays, which is tied for seventh most in the NFL. The Rams have stopped defending ball carriers for a loss on 48 run plays, which is tied for the second most in that category in the league this season.

The Rams are led by rookie DT Aaron Donald, who has 15 tackles for loss and 5.0 sacks this season. Pro Bowl DE Robert Quinn has 12 tackles for loss to go along with his 6.0 sacks this season.

DT Aaron Donald

St. Louis is looking to get their run defense back on track this week against Oakland. In their last home game, the Rams held the Broncos to just 28 yards on the ground.

GREG THE LEG

Rams K Greg "The Leg" Zuerlein is enjoying another strong season in his third NFL campaign.

In the team's Week 11 win over Denver, Zuerlein was a perfect 5-of-5 on field goals, his first five field goal game of his career. Two of those kicks came from beyond 50 yards as Zuerlein scored 16 of the team's 22 points. He was named NFL Special Teams Player of the Week for the effort, his third such honor of his career.

K Greg Zuerlein

In the team's Week 9 win at San Francisco, Zuerlein connected on a pair of field goals - one from 37 yards and another from 39 in the team's win. His 39-yarder came in the fourth quarter and proved to be the difference in the 13-10 St. Louis victory.

The game winner against the 49ers marked the fifth time in three seasons that Zuerlein has made a fourth quarter/overtime kick to tie or give the Rams a lead. He's now 16-of-20 on the season.

With three field goals from 50 yards or longer this season, Zuerlein has 11 career makes from long distance. That places him third on the team's all-time list. He's made five of the six longest kicks in team history.

The third-year pro is also the most accurate kicker in team history when it comes to field goals as he's made 82.3 percent of his kicks (65-of-79).

Last season, Zuerlein made 12 consecutive field goal attempts to close the year. He was perfect the last seven weeks and finished 26-of-28 on field goals in 2013.

As a rookie, Zuerlein made seven field goals from 50 yards or more. In a win over San Francisco, he broke the franchise record for 50+ yard field goals in a season. He also kicked the longest field goal by a rookie in league history (60 yds.) and became the first kicker in league history to make a 50-plus and 60-plus yard field goal in the same game.

HE'S A WINNER

Rams Head Coach Jeff Fisher has won 160 regular season games during his 18-plus seasons as an NFL head coach.

Fisher is among the winningest head coaches of his era. Among active head coaches, Fisher is third in career wins, trailing only Bill Belichick and Tom Coughlin.

In his first two seasons in St. Louis, the Rams won 14 games after the team combined for 15 wins in the previous five years.

Head Coach Jeff Fisher

With the team's Week 9 win at San Francisco, Fisher moved past Hall of Famer Bud Grant for 15th place in NFL history in regular season victories. He trails Mike Holmgren and Tom Coughlin (161), who are tied for 14th all time, by just one game on the all-time wins list.

JOHNNY ON THE SPOT

Whether it's with his arm or his leg, Rams P Johnny Hekker is one of the NFL's most dangerous special teams weapons.

In 43 career games that Hekker, has recorded a net average of 45.0 yards or more on 11 different occasions. He's 7th in the NFL this season in net average (41.4).

P Johnny Hekker

Last week, with the Rams down 10 in the fourth quarter, the former high school quarterback was called upon to throw on a fake from the Rams' 26 yard line. He executed to perfection and St. Louis was able to drive for a touchdown to close the gap to three points. Hekker also completed a pass on a fake punt against Seattle in a Week 7 win this season.

In three NFL seasons, Hekker is 5-of-6 passing on fakes, including a touchdown pass on a fake field goal as a rookie in 2012.

Hekker earned both Pro Bowl and All-Pro honors in 2013 after he recorded the highest single-season net average (44.2) in NFL history. His 46.3 gross average was 10th in the league and was the fourth best single-season total in Rams history.

Opponents averaged just 2.6 yards per return against the Rams last season, the best total in the NFL this season. He had just four touchbacks in 78 punts and placed 19 inside the opponents' 20-yard line.

A SPECIAL GROUP

Through 11 games, St. Louis ranks 7th in the NFL in punt return average as a team (10.9). Individually, Benny Cunningham ranks fourth in the league in kickoff return average at 28.9 yards per return.

When the Rams aren't returning punts, they're benefitting from the prowess of their special teams units. Opponents are yielding a net punting average of just 35.9 yards per punt this season, the third lowest total in the NFL, and St. Louis foes' gross punting average of 42.9 yards is the fourth-lowest in the league this season.
RB Chase Reynolds

In the team's Week 7 win over Seattle, Stedman Bailey returned a punt 90 yards for a touchdown by using a bit of trickery. Tavon Austin pretended to be tracking the ball on the left sideline and drew coverage to him, while Bailey raced to the opposite side of the field and caught the ball with a clear path to the end zone. St. Louis also executed a fake punt late in the Seattle game to secure the victory.

The Rams are 2-for-2 this season on fake punts after gaining 19 yards last week on a fourth-quarter pass from Johnny Hekker to Bailey.

The Rams' kicking game has been aided by the play of Chase Reynolds, a "four-core" player who leads the team with 15 special teams tackles on the season.

SACK ATTACK

When the Rams have had success this year, their pass rush has been a big reason for it.

Last week, St. Louis dropped Philip Rivers three times to give them 22 sacks as a team this season.

In the team's win over San Francisco in Week 9, St. Louis dropped 49ers QB Colin Kaepernick eight times, including six in the first half.

Since Jeff Fisher took over in 2012, the Rams have recorded 127 sacks as a team. That's the second most in the NFL over that time period.

DE Eugene Sims

Quinn leads the Rams with 6.0 sacks this season, followed by rookie DT Aaron Donald, who recorded his fifth sack last week and has one in each of the last two weeks. Donald leads all NFL rookies in the category.

Led by an NFC best 19.0 sacks from Quinn last season, St. Louis finished third in the NFL with 53 on the season. The Rams were second in sacks per pass play. In 2013, 11 different Rams recorded at least one sack. The Rams had five defensive linemen with 5.0 or more sacks.

Over the last five years, the Rams have posted 209 sacks as a team, which leads the NFL in that span.

BROCKERS BRINGING IT

DT Michael Brockers continues to hold down the middle of the Rams defense.

Brockers recorded his second sack of the season last week in San Diego. Two weeks ago, he helped limit Denver to just 28 yards rushing, a week after Arizona compiled the same total. He had his best game of the season in Week 9 as he helped St. Louis hold the 49ers to just 80 yards rushing. He also recorded his first sack of the season in San Francisco.

DT Michael Brockers

Brockers has 36 tackles in 11 games on the year. In 2013, he led all Rams defensive linemen with 75 tackles.

In 40 career games, Brockers has 11.5 sacks, which ranks among the best in comparison with the defensive linemen drafted in the first round in 2012.

ON GUARD!

G Rodger Saffold has been a key cog for the Rams up front, and his versatility has been a welcomed asset. He started the first four games of the season at left guard. When rookie Greg Robinson entered the lineup in Week 6, Saffold moved to right guard.

Five weeks ago when LT Jake Long went down with a season-ending injury, Robinson kicked out to left tackle and Saffold moved back to left guard where his ability to pass protect and push the pile in the run game have been key to the team's success.

G Rodger Saffold

When the Rams drafted Saffold in the second round in 2010, he immediately became the team's left tackle and started his first 35 games there. Last season, he began the season at right tackle before moving inside. He's now entrenched at the guard position, no matter what side it is. Of his 55 career starts, 36 have come at left tackle, eight at left guard, four at right tackle and seven and right guard.

In the team's last home game, Saffold played a key role in the Rams rushing for 131 yards against the Broncos. For St. Louis, it was the team's highest total in a game this season, and it came against a Denver team that entered the contest leading the NFL in rushing yards allowed per game.

TAVON AWESOME

Whether it's throwing it to him, handing it to him, or forcing the opponent to punt it to him, the Rams find ways to get the ball in the hands of Tavon Austin.

Last week in San Diego, Austin scored his first touchdown of the season when he rushed six yards to the end zone.

On the year, he's caught 22 passes and rushed 23 times.

Austin finished his first NFL campaign with 40 catches in 13 games and scored six total touchdowns - four receiving, one rushing and one via punt return.

WR Tavon Austin

On the third play of the Rams' Week 12 win over Chicago, Austin took a pitch from QB Kellen Clemens, pivoted to reverse field and raced 65-yards for a touchdown. He also had a 56-yard run against Arizona that set up a Zac Stacy touchdown.

In the process, Austin became the first player in NFL history with a 95-yard punt return for touchdown, 80-yard touchdown reception and 65-yard rushing score in the same season.

In Week 10 in Indianapolis, Austin became just the third rookie in NFL history to score three touchdowns of 55 yards or more in a game.

Austin caught two passes - a 57-yard bomb for a touchdown and a short crossing pattern that resulted in an 81-yard touchdown. He also returned a punt 98 yards for a score.

He became the first player in NFL history to return a punt 95 yards for a touchdown and have a 55-yard touchdown catch. With 314 all-purpose yards, Austin turned in the second-best single-game performance in team history.

RED LIGHT IN THE RED ZONE

The Rams' defense has been one of the NFL's best deep inside their own territory, and they proved it twice last week in San Diego.

LB James Laurinaitis

The Chargers made two trips to the St. Louis defensive red zone. They were forced to settle for a field goal on their first and CB Janoris Jenkins intercepted Philip Rivers and returned the ball 99 yards for a touchdown on the second.

St. Louis had two key stops deep in their defensive end of the field in their Week 9 victory that proved crucial in the team's win over San Francisco, including a goal line stand in the final minutes that saw Laurinaitis recover a Colin Kaepernick fumble to preserve the victory.

On the season, opponents have scored touchdowns on 46.7 percent of their trips inside the Rams' defensive red zone. That number is the second best in the NFC and fifth in the NFL.

POSITIVE GAINES

CB E.J. Gaines might very well turn out to be one of the steals of the 2014 Draft.

CB E.J. Gaines

The Rams kept Gaines in his home state when they selected him in the sixth round. Gaines started each of his first 11 NFL games. He's the only rookie cornerback in the NFL to start all of his team's games this season.

Last week, Gaines was credited with eight tackles. He leads the team with 11 pass breakups and he's been on the field for 97 percent of the Rams' defensive snaps this season.

In Week 5, while defending fellow Mizzou Tiger Jeremy Maclin on a deep ball, Gaines came away with his first career interception. He also recovered a fumble earlier in the game.

While he's spent most of his time playing on the perimeter this season, an injury forced Gaines to the nickel position the last three weeks, where he's turned in three strong performances.

Gaines has 72 total tackles on the season. He was a First-Team All-SEC performer at Missouri in 2013 after intercepting five passes, second most in the conference. He previously earned First-Team All-Big XII honors as a sophomore before Mizzou moved conferences.

WILL THE THRILL

DE William Hayes has provided St. Louis with a "super sub" throughout his three seasons with the team. When his good friend Chris Long suffered an ankle injury that landed him on Reserve - Injured (Designated to Return) earlier this year, Hayes became a super starter.

DE William Hayes

Hayes leads the team with 32 quarterback pressures on the year. In the team's Week 9 win over San Francisco, Hayes recorded 2.0 sacks. It was his fourth career multi-sack game.

In 41 games with the Rams, Hayes has 14.0 sacks and 59 pressures. He's started nine games this season, while in his first two years with the club he regularly saw the field as part of the team's deep defensive line rotation.

After posting a career high 7.0 sacks in 2012, Hayes was a free agent but chose to stay put in St. Louis. He began his career with the Tennessee Titans and joined Head Coach Jeff Fisher in St. Louis in 2012 shortly after Fisher took the Rams job. Hayes has repeatedly said that his admiration for his head coach and his camaraderie with his teammates were the deciding factors when he chose to re-sign with the Rams in 2013.
'THE MOUNTAINEER'

Rams WR Stedman Bailey had his best performance of his two-year career last week in San Diego.

WR Stedman Bailey

Bailey led the Rams with seven receptions for 89 yards - both career single-game highs - and scored his first career receiving touchdown. As a rookie, he found the end zone on a reverse run first his first overall touchdown.

Throughout his career, Bailey has been a key special teams contributor. One of his catches last week came on a fake punt. He gained 19 yards and kept a crucial drive alive, one that he capped with a seven-yard touchdown catch.

Earlier this season, he was part of another trick special teams play that helped St. Louis to a victory. Prior to the Rams' Week 7 win over Seattle, Bailey had never fielded a punt in a football game at any level - high school, college or the NFL.

In the second quarter of the team's Week 7 win, Rams PR Tavon Austin pretended to track a punt down the left sideline while the Rams coverage team raced towards Austin in attempt to set up a return.

In actuality, Seattle had punted the ball to the St. Louis right. Bailey fielded the punt over his shoulder, turned and raced 90 yards for a touchdown. The play was the longest punt return in the NFL this season and is tied for the third longest in Rams history.

Rams coaches named the play "The Mountaineer" because it centered around Bailey and Austin, both of whom played at the University of West Virginia. Bailey was named NFC Special Teams Player of the Week following his 90-yard return.

GAME SUMMARIES

ST. LOUIS 6, MINNESOTA 34
September 7, 2014 - Edward Jones Dome - St. Louis, Mo.

Weather: Indoors - Attendance: 55,919 - Time: 12:00 p.m.

The St. Louis Rams fell to the Minnesota Vikings, 34-6, in their 43rd all-time meeting. Minnesota got on the board first on the game's opening drive on a 52-yard field goal by Blair Walsh. The Rams' defense held the Vikings scoreless through the remainder of the first quarter. Meanwhile, QB Shaun Hill completed 6 of his first 7 passes during the first quarter, including a 23-yarder to WR Brian Quick on the Rams' first offensive drive. The Rams ended that drive with a punt and had an opportunity to score points on their second drive of the day, but K Greg Zuerlein's 50-yard field goal attempt sailed left. Atop the second quarter, Walsh converted his second field goal of the day from 46 yards out, giving the Vikings a 6-0 lead over the Rams. Both teams exchanged punts for the remainder of the quarter. With 1:13 remaining in the half, Hill's pass that was intended for TE Jared Cook was intercepted at the St. Louis 19-yard line. The Vikings took advantage of the short field and found the end zone on an 8-yard pass from QB Matt Cassel to WR Greg Jennings. The four-play drive of 35 yards extended their lead to 13 points at the close of the half. Austin Davis started in place of Hill at quarterback for the second half due to an injury that Hill suffered earlier in the game. On his first NFL snap of his career, Davis completed a 10-yard pass to Cook and four plays later, he connected with Cook again for a 26-yard completion. The drive ended in a 56-yard field goal by Zuerlein. The kick tied his own record for fourth longest in team history. He previously kicked a 56-yarder at Chicago during his rookie season (9/23/12). Both teams were forced to punt in the subsequent two drives. After which, the Vikings scored on a 1-play drive in which WR Cordarrelle Patterson lined up in the backfield and ran the ball 67 yards for the score. The Vikings found the end zone again with 6:35 left in the game on a 7-yard pass to TE Kyle Rudolph, which capped a 9-play drive of 70 yards. The Rams' subsequent drive ended on an interception that was returned 81 yards for a touchdown by S Harrison Smith, giving the Vikings the 34-3 lead. With 1:36 remaining, Zuerlein converted a 46-yard field goal, for the final score of the game. Amidst the loss, Quick caught a team-leading seven passes for 99 yards, setting a personal best in receptions and receiving yards. In his NFL debut, Davis completed 16 of 23 passes for 192 yards.

ST. LOUIS 19, TAMPA BAY 17
September 14, 2014 - Raymond James Stadium - Tampa, Fla.

Weather: Cloudy, 88° - Attendance: 59,923 - Time: 3:05 p.m.

For the first time since 2001, the St. Louis Rams won their road opener, defeating the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, 19-17. QB Austin Davis made his first career start and completed 22 passes for 235 yards and a 99.1 quarterback rating. Davis led the Rams to their first touchdown of the season following Tampa Bay's 7-0 score in the game's opening drive. The Rams' game-tying drive featured 41 rushing yards, including an 18-yard run by WR Tavon Austin and a 2-yard scoring rush from second-year back Zac Stacy. In another game of firsts, S Rodney McLeod snagged the team's first interception of the year at the St. Louis 9-yard line. At 4:04 p.m. (CT) the game was suspended due to lighting. Following the 51-minute delay, the Rams found themselves up 10-7 with 0:39 seconds left in the half as a result of a blocked punt by S T.J. McDonald and a 36-yard field goal on the part of K Greg Zuerlein. Tampa Bay responded atop the third quarter with McCown's second rushing touchdown that stemmed from a lost fumble by Stacy, giving the Bucs a 14-10 lead. A 35-yard field goal by Zuerlein reeled the Rams closer within 1. On the first play of the fourth quarter, McDonald blocked his second kick, a 24-yard field goal try, which was returned by LB Ray Ray Armstrong 20 yards. The play translated into points, as Zuerlein made his third field goal on a 46-yard kick. The teams exchanged the lead for the fourth time of the game after a 36-yard field goal that put the Bucs back up, 17-16. Starting with 5:08 on the clock, Davis led the Rams to a game-winning drive, completing 4-of-6 passes – including a 27-yard grab by WR Austin Pettis – for 64 yards, setting up Zuerlein's 38-yard field goal. Left with 0:38, Tampa Bay opened their final series with a 19-yard completion and spiked the ball with 0:20 to stop the clock. On the final play, McCown completed a 29-yard pass to Bucs WR Mike Evans. Evans was injured on the play, and Tampa Bay had no timeouts remaining, which resulted in a 10-second delay. There was only eight seconds on the clock at the time of the injury and left the Rams with the 19-17 win and 14-8 advantage in the series. For the second consecutive game, WR Brian Quick led the team in receptions with seven, while WR Kenny Britt recorded his first reception as a Ram. Defensively, CB E.J. Gaines recorded his first NFL sack, splitting a takedown of McCown with DE Eugene Sims. Meanwhile, DE William Hayes notched his first start as a Ram, starting in place of the injured Chris Long. With the win, Rams Head Coach Jeff Fisher has 157 regular season wins, leaving him one shy of tying Tom Coughlin of the New York Giants for second-most among active head coaches.

ST. LOUIS 31, DALLAS 34
September 21, 2014 - Edward Jones Dome - St. Louis, Mo.

WEATHER: Indoors - ATTENDANCE: 58,739 - TIME: 12:00 p.m.

For the first time in 2014, the St. Louis Rams generated scoring drives on their opening two possessions. Meanwhile, the defense forced two turnovers and a Dallas punt on their first three series. The result was a 21-0 lead, the Rams' largest of the season. On the Rams' first play from scrimmage, Zac Stacy set the tone with a 12-yard run. Two plays later, undrafted rookie Trey Watts registered his first NFL carry. Watts finished the game with 24 yards, helping the Rams tab their second-consecutive game of 100 or more rushing yards. QB Austin Davis completed 6-of-7 passes for 40 yards in that opening drive. His seventh throw resulted in his first NFL touchdown pass, a 1-yard completion to TE Lance Kendricks. The catch was also Kendricks' first touchdown of the season and ninth of his career. On third-and-4 in Dallas' ensuing drive, LB Alec Ogletree forced his first fumble of the season – his first career fumble recovery – and returned one yard to the St. Louis 35-yard line. The Rams' second scoring drive took 10 fewer plays than their first and concluded with a 51-yard touchdown pass to WR Brian Quick, his first of the season, and was the Rams' longest offensive play of the season. Armed with a 14-0 lead, the defense got in on the action as CB Janoris Jenkins intercepted a Tony Romo pass intended for WR Dez Bryant and returned it 25 yards for his fifth career touchdown. His last interception returned for a touchdown occurred on Dec. 23, 2012. Since entering the league in 2012, Jenkins has the most defensive touchdowns in the NFL – four of which came during his rookie season. An accumulation of penalties and a lost fumble by the Rams helped Dallas score a touchdown and a 29-yard field goal following Jenkins' score. By the close of the quarter, the Rams' lead diminished to 11 points with a halftime score of 21-10. Upon returning to the field, Dallas reached the end zone on a four-play drive of 83 yards, which was highlighted by a 68-yard catch by Bryant. Dallas nailed a 40-yard field goal on their ensuing possession, bringing them within one point of the Rams. The Rams responded with a field goal of their own, a 28-yarder from K Greg Zuerlein, and extended their lead, 24-20. Dallas pushed ahead for the first time of the game on the next series. A 33-yard defensive pass interference by Jenkins put Dallas on the St. Louis 20-yard line and two plays later, Terrance Williams scored on a 12-yard grab. On the Rams' first play from scrimmage following the Dallas touchdown, Davis intended for Stacy was intercepted and returned 25 yards for a touchdown. Behind by 10 points, the Rams put together an 11-play, 80-yard drive that ended in a 4-yard touchdown catch by WR Austin Pettis with 2:36 left in regulation. The defense forced a Dallas punt, giving the Rams offense 1:58 to attempt a score. Following an incomplete pass and two short tosses for 12 yards, Davis threw his second interception of the day, giving Dallas the 34-31 victory.

ST. LOUIS 28, PHILADELPHIA 34
October 5, 2014 - Lincoln Financial Field - Philadelphia, Pa.

Weather: Sunny, 59° - Attendance: 69,596 - Time: 12:02 p.m.

Despite amassing a season-high 466 total yards on offense, the Rams came up short against the Philadelphia Eagles, losing 34-28. The Eagles jumped to a 13-0 lead in the first quarter following a blocked Johnny Hekker punt, the first surrendered in his three-year career, on the first drive of the game and two field goals in Philadelphia's subsequent possessions. On the Eagles' first drive of the second quarter, LB Alec Ogletree forced his eighth career fumble and first of the season, which was recovered by rookie CB E.J. Gaines on the Philadelphia 19-yard line. Gaines showed up again on the next defensive series, intercepting Nick Foles with 10:02 remaining in the half. The play marked his first career interception and led to the Rams' first touchdown on the day, an 8-yard pass from QB Austin Davis to WR Brian Quick. Philadelphia responded at the end of the quarter with an 11-play, 80-yard scoring drive that ended in a 9-yard touchdown pass to WR Riley Cooper. On the Rams' first play of the new half, Davis was sacked at the St. Louis 5-yard line and fumbled the ball, which was recovered by Eagles DL Cedric Thornton in the end zone. With 2:15 remaining in the third quarter, the Eagles extended their lead to 34-7 following a 24-yard touchdown pass. Starting with the ball on their own 21 with 2:10 left in the third, the Rams scored 21 unanswered points. Davis completed 3-of-3 passes and added a 12-yard scramble to set up RB Benny Cunningham's 14-yard touchdown run at the end of the third quarter. A Foles fumble on the ensuing drive was recovered by DT Michael Brockers at the St. Louis 38 and led to the Davis' second touchdown pass – a 30-yarder to WR Kenny Britt, his first touchdown as a Ram. Two drives later, Davis connected with Quick for another touchdown with 4:41 left in regulation. The defense held the Eagles scoreless and forced a punt, which was downed at the St. Louis 7-yard line. On the first play from scrimmage, Davis hit Quick for a 43-yard gain. A series of three incomplete passes ended the drive and sealed the win for the Eagles.

ST. LOUIS 14, SAN FRANCISCO 31
October 13, 2014 - Edward Jones Dome - St. Louis, Mo.

Weather: Indoors - Attendance: 56,851 - Time: 7:30 p.m.

After getting off to a fast start against their division rivals, the Rams' saw a first-quarter lead dwindle into a 31-17 loss. The offense orchestrated an 11-play, 80-yard touchdown drive off the opening kickoff while donning 1999 throwback jerseys in honor of the 15th Anniversary of St. Louis' Super Bowl XXXIV win. On the third play of the drive, QB Austin Davis connected with TE Jared Cook on a 39-yard pass play. WR Tavon Austin added two carries for 10 yards to help push the Rams to the San Francisco 49. Rookie RB Tre Mason saw action in his first NFL game while his former college teammate and Rams first-round draft pick Greg Robinson made his first career start. Mason's first career catch came on first-and-10 and went for 12 yards. Four plays later, fellow running back Benny Cunningham scored on a 1-yard rush. The touchdown was his second in as many games. Also making his first NFL start was DT Aaron Donald – the Rams' second pick of the first round. Donald led the defensive line in tackles, alongside DE Euguene Sims, with seven. On the team's second defensive series, S Rodney McLeod forced his first fumble of the season. The ball was recovered by LB James Laurinaitis at the St. Louis 17 and he returned it 17 yards to the San Francisco 45-yard line. The forced fumble was the third of McLeod's career and was respectively Laurinaitis' sixth recovery. Mason opened the ensuing drive with a 24-yard rush – the longest of the game – which was followed by a 22-yard touchdown catch by TE Lance Kendricks three plays later. Through the first quarter, Davis completed 7-of-8 passes for 103 yards in what was his first NFL start. The Niners got on the board on a 54-yard field goal with 7:07 remaining in the half. The score was the start of a 24-0 run by San Francisco. Before closing out the first half, 49ers QB Colin Kaepernick capped a 5-play scoring drive with an 80-yard touchdown pass to Brandon Lloyd with 0:27 remaining. Kaepernick later completed 11- and 32-yard touchdown passes to WRs Anquan Boldin and Michael Crabtree, respectively. Punts were exchanged for the majority of the fourth quarter until Greg Zuerlein converted a 38-yard field goal with 2:28 on the clock. The Rams attempted an onside kick, which was recovered by San Francisco at the St. Louis 48-yard line. The defense forced a three-and-out and the offense began their subsequent drive on their own 9 with 1:05 remaining. Cunningham ran six yards and on the next play, Davis' pass that was intended for WR Kenny Britt was intercepted and returned 20 yards for a touchdown, resulting in the game's final score.

ST. LOUIS 28, SEATTLE 26
October 13, 2014 - Edward Jones Dome - St. Louis, Mo.

WEATHER: Indoors - ATTENDANCE: 57,855 - TIME: 12:00 p.m.

Armed with a two-point lead, the Rams were 2:55 away from toppling the defending Super Bowl champion Seattle Seahawks. The Rams were faced with fourth-and-3 from their own 18 and rather than punting, Johnny Hekker threw his fifth NFL pass for an 18-yard gain to RB Benny Cunningham. Rookie RB Tre Mason closed the game with three runs for 18 yards, sealing the Rams' 28-26 victory. In just his second NFL game, Mason generated 85 yards on the ground. After the Seahawks opened the game with a 24-yard field goal on their first possession, Cunningham returned the ensuing kickoff 75 yards to the Seattle 31. The return is tied for the fifth longest in franchise history, and was the longest since Danny Amendola's return of 84 yards on Dec. 10, 2010 vs. 49ers. Cunningham's return also set up Mason's first NFL touchdown – a 6-yard rush up the middle – six plays later. Cunningham found the end zone himself atop the second quarter on a 5-yard shovel pass from QB Austin Davis. Cunningham went on to lead the team in receiving yards for the first time in a career with 46. The Rams extended their 14-3 lead midway through the second quarter with another big play on special teams. With 7:24 left in the half, Seattle punted from their own 49. The Rams dialed up a unique play for the punt and mislead the Seahawks to the left sideline where it appeared as though WR/PR Tavon Austin was fielding the punt. Meanwhile, WR Stedman Bailey caught the ball on the opposite side of the field and ran 90 yards for the six points. What was Bailey's first ever punt return, tied Dick Bass' 1961 return vs. Green Bay for third-longest in team history. Seattle's punt was a result of two sacks over the span of three plays by DT Aaron Donald and DE Eugene Sims. Pro Bowl DE Robert Quinn recorded his first sack of the season in Seattle's subsequent drive. Against Seattle, Quinn has recorded at least one sack in 6-of-7 games for a total of 8. Seattle began to chop at the Rams' 18-point lead starting at the tail of the second quarter on a 35-yard field goal with 10 seconds remaining. By the midway point, the Rams owned the 21-6 lead and marked the second time this season the Rams scored 21 points in the first half. The team also limited the Seahawks to 31 yards on the ground, while Davis was near perfect throwing, completing each of his 9 passes for a 122.7 passer rating. Seahawks QB Russell Wilson inched Seattle closer, 21-19, on a 19-yard touchdown run in the third quarter, followed by a 19-yard pass to TE Cooper Helfet on their ensuing drive at the beginning of the fourth quarter. St. Louis responded with an 8-play, 80-yard drive that concluded with Davis' second touchdown of the day – a 4-yard pass to TE Lance Kendricks. Wilson mimicked an 8-play, 80-yard drive of his own and found WR Doug Baldwin in the end zone on a 9-yard pass play with 3:22 left in regulation. Despite Wilson's 101 second-half rushing yards and Seattle's spark of scores, the Rams maintained possession of the ball for the remainder of the game and claimed their first win over the Seahawks since 2012.

ST. LOUIS 7, KANSAS CITY 34
October 26, 2014 - Arrowhead Stadium - Kansas City, Mo.

WEATHER: Sunny, 70° - ATTENDANCE: 75,972 - TIME: 12:04 p.m.

In their first game of a three-game road tour, the St. Louis Rams lost to the Kansas City Chiefs in a contest known as the "Missouri Governor's Cup." The game marked the Rams' first regular season meeting at Arrowhead since 2002 and with the 34-7 win, the Chiefs now hold the 7-4 advantage in the all-time series. The Rams came up with their lone touchdown on the first drive following opening kickoff. RB Benny Cunningham, who entered the game leading the National Football League in kickoff return average at 36.1 ypg, put the Rams at their own 35 following a 41-yard return, which setup the eventual touchdown. The score marked the fifth time this season that the Rams scored in the first quarter. The drive lasted three minutes and four seconds, spanned six plays and was highlighted by a 43-yard catch by WR Kenny Britt and 1-yard touchdown reception by TE Lance Kendricks. Kendricks – a fourth-year pro who leads the team in TD receptions with four – has now recorded a touchdown in three consecutive games. With 2:37 on the clock, DE Robert Quinn forced his first fumble of the season (9th career), however Kansas City maintained possession as the ball bounced out of bounds on CB E.J. Gaines' attempted recovery. The score was evened at 7 following a 1-yard touchdown run by RB Jamaal Charles (Cairo Santos extra point) nearly three minutes into the second quarter. On first-and-10 in the Chiefs' ensuing possession, DE William Hayes recovered a fumble caused by mishandled handoff between QB Alex Smith and Charles at the KC 14-yard line and returned it six yards. A 14-yard Chiefs sack on third down led to a 38-yard field goal try by K Greg Zuerlein. The kick was wide right. In the subsequent series, Kanas City put together a 10-play field goal drive. In the closing plays of that drive, Quinn recorded back-to-back sacks to put Kansas City on the St. Louis 35-yard line. Quinn last accomplished the feat on Dec. 28, 2013 against the Seattle Seahawks. Santos' 53-yard kick sent the Rams into the locker room at halftime trailing by three. Upon returning to the field, Knile Davis returned the opening kickoff of the second half 99 yards to put the Chiefs up 17-7. Kanas City compiled another field-goal drive in the third quarter. The series was extended by Rams penalties and ended in a 28-yard field goal by Santos. On the second play of the fourth quarter, Charles found the end zone on a 36-yard rush, marking the Chiefs' longest play of the day. Davis later scored on a rushing touchdown with 6:32 to give the Chiefs the 27-point lead and subsequent victory.

ST. LOUIS 13, SAN FRANCISCO 10
November 2, 2014 - Levi's Stadium - Santa Clara, Calif.

Weather: Sunny, 61° - Attendance: 70,799 - Time: 12:05 p.m.

The St. Louis Rams held on to defeat the San Francisco 49ers, 13-10, in their first trip to Levi's Stadium, marking their second win in division play. Both teams got on the board with field goals in the first quarter, beginning with San Francisco on their opening possession. The Rams' first offensive possession of the second quarter was ended following an interception by 49ers S Antoine Bethea. The interception put the 49ers at the St. Louis 35 and resulted in a 27-yard touchdown pass to Anquan Boldin. After the score, the Rams defense went on to produce three sacks – two from DE Robert Quinn. On Quinn's later second-quarter sack, he stripped 49ers QB Colin Kaepernick of the football, which was recovered by Eugene Sims and lead to a 21-yard touchdown reception by WR Kenny Britt to tie the game at 10. The touchdown was Britt's second as a Ram, and Austin Davis' 11th as the starting quarterback. Davis has thrown at least one touchdown pass in each of the last six games. By halftime, the Rams had accumulated six sacks – the most first half sacks in franchise history since the sack became an official statistic in 1982. After a scoreless third quarter, Rams K Greg Zuerlein converted a 39-yard field goal. The kick capped a four-play drive of eight yards that began at the San Francisco 29 after Andy Lee's punt from deep in the end zone went off the side of his foot and traveled 23 yards. The 49ers started their final offensive series of the game with 3:11 remaining on their own 12-yard line. Back-to-back Rams penalties coupled with a 20-yard catch by Boldin put San Francisco at the two. Two plays later, the Rams found themselves clinging to a 3-point lead with the 49ers stationed at the 1. On third down with nine seconds remaining, Kaepernick attempted a quarterback sneak and fumbled before crossing the goal line. The ball was recovered by LB James Laurinaitis in the end zone, giving the Rams their second win in three weeks. The victory came on the heels of a standout defensive effort that was highlighted with eight sacks from six different players. The sack total was the team's largest since their 9-sack day vs. Arizona on Oct. 4, 2012 and their largest on the road since 2000.

ST. LOUIS 14, ARIZONA 31
November 9, 2014 - University of Phoenix Stadium - Glendale, Ari.

Weather: Indoors - Attendance: 61,363 - Time: 3:25 p.m.

In their third division matchup of the season against the Arizona Cardinals, who own the NFL's best record, the St. Louis Rams surrendered a 14-10 lead that extended deep into the fourth quarter. The course of the game changed drastically over the final seven minutes of play as the result of three turnovers coupled with a 48-yard touchdown pass by Arizona. On the Cardinals' first drive of the fourth quarter, newcomer S Mark Barron recorded his first sack as a Ram. On the play, Cardinals QB Carson Palmer was injured and did not return to the game. Barron's sack forced a 53-yard field goal try that was unsuccessful and kept the Rams in front by four points. The Cardinals regained possession after a Rams punt and second-string QB Drew Stanton engineered a four-play, 89-yard scoring drive that concluded in the 48-yard touchdown reception to John Brown. What was a one-possession game, slipped away from the Rams as their ensuing three possessions ended in back-to-back interceptions – the later returned for a touchdown by Cardinals CB Patrick Peterson – and a sack fumble that was returned for another touchdown. The loss was Head Coach Jeff Fisher's second to the Cardinals since becoming the Rams' head coach. In the first half in which the Rams scored all of their points, QB Austin Davis completed 8-of-10 passes for 110 yards and generated a 145.8 passer rating, the highest first half rating amongst Rams quarterbacks since 2007. A stout rushing effort by RB Tre Mason, WR Tavon Austin, and RB Benny Cunningham gave the Rams their first touchdown on their third offensive possession. Austin produced 26 yards (16-rec, 10-ru) on the drive, while Mason added 27 rushing yards. Cunningham saw action on the final play and punched the end zone on first down from the Arizona 3-yard line. Arizona followed up with their own 3-yard rushing touchdown on the first drive of the second quarter to even the score at 7. Two drives later, Arizona added a 43-yard field goal to go up 10-7. The Rams regained the lead on a 59-yard touchdown pass from Davis to TE Jared Cook. Not only was it the longest play of the game, but it was the longest reception of the season and Cook's longest during his career in St. Louis. Defensively, the Rams limited the Cardinals' rushing attack to 23 yards, a 1.3-yard average, marking the lowest rushing total and average by a Rams opponent in 2014. Additionally, the defense recorded two additional sacks to Barron's as DE Robert Quinn and S T.J. McDonald each tacked on one a piece. Quinn's sack marked his fourth consecutive game with at least one sack, giving him 6.0 on the season, while McDonald's was his first of the season, and second of his career. McDonald also split the team lead in tackles with 12 (nine solo) with LB Alec Ogletree who also recorded a 44-yard interception return, 2 passes defensed, and one forced fumble.

ST. LOUIS 22, DENVER 7
November 16, 2014 - Edward Jones Dome - St. Louis, Mo.

WEATHER: Indoors - ATTENDANCE: 59,401 - TIME: 12:00 p.m.

Turnover-free play on offense coupled with a season-high five field goals and a defensive effort that held the NFL's third-ranked total offense to seven points led to the Rams' 22-7 victory over the reigning AFC champion Denver Broncos. Shaun Hill was named the starting quarterback, his first start since the team's Week 1 contest against the Minnesota Vikings. In his second game at the helm of the offense, Hill completed 20-of-29 passes for 220 yards and a 102.7 passer rating. On the third play from scrimmage, he found WR Kenny Britt on 33-yard completion, which resulted in K Greg Zuerlein's first field goal of the day. With 1:18 remaining in the first quarter, the Rams reached the end zone on a one-play scoring drive where Britt hauled in a 63-yard pass from Hill. Britt recorded two additional receptions in the half and accumulated 128 receiving yards, marking the highest first half total since Danny Amendola amassed 133 yards on Sept. 16, 2012 vs. the Washington Redskins. In addition to Britt, rookie RB Tre Mason and piled up a season-high 113 rushing yards against the NFL's top-ranked run defense that previously limited opponents to 67.0 yards per game. Britt and Mason's combined performance marked the first time that the Rams had a 100-yard rusher and receiver in the same game since 2012. After St. Louis converted their second field goal of the day, Denver responded with a five-play scoring drive of 80 yards that was capped on a 42-yard pass from QB Peyton Manning to Emmanuel Sanders. The Rams defense did not allow another touchdown, ending Manning's streak of 15 games with multiple scoring throws. Additionally, the Rams defense held Denver to 28 yards on the ground, the lowest total produced by a Rams opponent, and also recorded a pair of sacks. Zuerlein added three points in the third quarter on a 22-yard kick to push the Rams ahead, 16-7, with 1:48 on the clock. Two fourth-quarter interceptions - one each by LB Alec Ogletree and CB Trumaine Johnson - led to Zuerlein's fourth and fifth field goals, of 55 and 53 yards, respectively, and ultimately sealed the game for St. Louis. His final two field goals marked the first time that he converted two field goals of 50 or more yards since his rookie season in 2012. Additionally, his five field goals made were a career high for the third-year kicker. The Rams to extended their all-time series lead against the Broncos, 8-5, and gave Head Coach Jeff Fisher his 160th regular season win as a head coach. Fisher is now one win away from tying Tom Coughlin of the New York Giants for the second-most regular season wins amongst active head coaches.

ST. LOUIS 24, SAN DIEGO 27
November 23, 2014 - Qualcomm Stadium - San Diego, Calif.

WEATHER: Sunny, 72° - ATTENDANCE: 66,040 - TIME: 3:05 p.m.

In their 11th all-time meeting with the San Diego Chargers, the Rams were faced with two 10-point deficits in the second half alone. On the heels of WR Tavon Austin's first touchdown of the season, the Rams were able to overcome the first. However, a goal-line interception in the final minute of the game allowed the Chargers to escape with the 27-24 victory. While St. Louis played from behind in the third and fourth quarters, the visiting Rams took a 10-3 lead thanks to CB Janoris Jenkins' 99-yard interception that was returned for a touchdown. The return is tied for the longest in franchise history and marked Jenkins' second pick-6 of the season and his sixth defensive touchdown since entering the league in 2012. The Chargers began to swipe at the Rams lead and converted a 48-yard field goal in the closing seconds of the first half. San Diego took a 20-10 lead after scoring back-to-back touchdowns in the third quarter. On their first offensive possession of the second half, Chargers RB Ryan Matthews ran up the middle for a 32-yard touchdown. On the ensuing possession, QB Shaun Hill was sacked by Chargers DT Corey Liuget and fumbled on the play. Chargers LB Andrew Gachkar scooped the loose ball and returned it 13 yards. The Rams rebounded and scored on a 6-yard rush by Austin less than two minutes later. Midway through the fourth quarter, the Rams found themselves down by 10 points for a second time and trailed the Chargers 27-17 following a 29-yard touchdown pass by Chargers QB Philip Rivers. With 8:04 left to play, the Rams orchestrated an 80-yard scoring drive that put St. Louis within three points of tying the Chargers at 27 points. The drive was extended with three third-down conversions and a 19-yard completion on a fake punt from P Johnny Hekker to WR Stedman Bailey on fourth-and-4 from the Rams 26-yard line. Hekker's pass was his second of the season and the fifth of his three-year career. Bailey, who finished the game with a team-leading 89 yards, capped the six-minute drive with a 7-yard touchdown. After the defense forced a three-and-out, the Rams started their final drive on the San Diego 40 with 1:27 remaining in regulation. Hill pushed the Rams to the San Diego 6 on a 27-yard pass to WR Kenny Britt who rolled out of bounds on the diving catch. Hill targeted Britt two plays later on second-and-4 but was intercepted by Chargers S Marcus Gilchrist, resulting in the game's final score.

ST. LOUIS RAMS FEATURE CLIPS

TITLE: Quinn breaks out 'The Bernie'
BYLINE: Jim Thomas, St. Louis Post-Dispatch
DATE: October 20, 2014

Robert Quinn had gone so long without a sack it looked like he'd forgotten how to do "The Bernie" — his trademark sack dance — after he finally got one midway through the second quarter Sunday.

"It was a full-action Bernie," Quinn insisted after the Rams hung on for a 28-26 victory over Seattle at the Edward Jones Dome.

Perhaps, but it wasn't as smooth as usual. Looked a little rusty.

"It's taken a while," Quinn said. "Once Aaron (Donald) started it off, we just kind of went from there. But me personally, to get (Russell Wilson) down for the first one of the year, it's a great feeling. We've still got a few more games to go, so hopefully, it won't be the last one."

Given that Sunday was Robert Quinn bobblehead day, and his picture was on tickets for the contest, it was only fitting he broke the dry spell.

"On bobblehead day," Quinn said, smiling. "I think they should've done that the first game of the season, so I wouldn't have to wait so long to get my first one."

After only one sack in their first five games, sacks came in bunches for the Rams in the second quarter. Donald, the rookie defensive tackle, dropped Wilson for a 5-yard loss with 9½ minutes remaining before halftime.

Two plays later, defensive end Eugene Sims dropped Wilson for a 9-yard loss to force a Seattle punt — a punt that was returned 90 yards for a touchdown by Stedman Bailey on a trick play.

On Seattle's next possession, Quinn broke through for his 7-yard sack. He's had at least one sack in his past five games against the Seahawks.

"We got three of those 'S-words' today, which was good," coach Jeff Fisher said. "Those were hard to find there for a while."

But that was all the Rams would get against Wilson, even though he absorbed several hits by the pass rush and was flushed out of the pocket on numerous occasions.

"This guy (Wilson) is hard to bring down," Fisher said. "And Russell, all by himself, made this quite a game."

En route to becoming the first player in NFL history with 300 yards passing and 100 yards rushing in the same game (according to Elias Sports), Wilson was almost unstoppable in the second half.

He accounted for 264 yards of offense and three TDs in the third and fourth quarters.

TITLE: Hill, yes! Rams QB has a day to remember
BYLINE: Jim Thomas, St. Louis Post-Dispatch
DATE: November 17, 2014

At about the same time that Broncos quarterback Peyton Manning addressed Denver reporters wearing a fancy suit after a stunning 22-7 loss, Rams counterpart Shaun Hill walked into his news conference wearing a plaid flannel shirt and blue jeans.

Now, that's what you call low-key.

"This is about as fancy as I get," Hill shrugged.

Then again, what do you expect from a humble Kansas native and avid fisherman who has his permanent residence in the Lake of the Ozarks?

OK, deduct a couple of points if you must for wardrobe. But other than that, Hill was pretty close to flawless as the Rams (4-6) toppled the defending Super Bowl runners-up Sunday at the Edward Jones Dome.

A thigh injury in the season opener against Minnesota all but derailed Hill's season. But eight games later, he finally got another chance to play, and he made the most of the opportunity.

Granted, Manning threw for nearly 400 yards Sunday, but it took him 54 passes — two of which were intercepted — to get his 389 yards. Hill threw only 29 times but completed 20 for 220 yards, a touchdown, and a passer rating of 102.7 — to Manning's 75.3 rating.

In his 13-year career, it was the first time Hill had gone head-to-head with Manning in a starting role. His father, who passed away in January 2011, wasn't there to see it. But Hill's 9-month-old son Theodore, who is named after Hill's father, was in the Dome.

"Coincidentally, this is the first win I've had since the last game he was alive — my father," Hill said. "A lot of emotions went into this one for sure."

Young Theodore, or Theo as Hill calls him, obviously won't recall what happened Sunday. But it is, after all, preserved on video.

"This is the first game he's been to that I've started and finished," Hill said. "That was kind of important, too, for me when I was coming into the season."

He wanted Theo to have some pictures, some video, of himself playing NFL football after Theo was born. At 34, Hill doesn't know how much time he has left in the league, and after the injury ended his day after two quarters against Minnesota, it looked like that might be all the 2014 football for Hill.

"It was important for me to come back and be able (to play) some during his life," Hill said.

But coach Jeff Fisher decided to switch from struggling Austin Davis to Hill last week, so now Theo watched one of the most memorable Rams games since the team moved to St. Louis in 1995 and certainly one of their biggest upsets. OK, Theo won't remember it unless he's some kind of baby genius, but he can watch the film in a few years.

"Not only did Shaun find Kenny (Britt) and make big plays to Kenny, but he extended some drives," Fisher said. "Time of possession is so important, and to find the back and find the check-down (is important). And then the guys — we didn't have any drops per se."

The Rams had a time-of-possession advantage of nearly 12 minutes: 35:50 to Denver's 24:10. They ran 65 plays, their highest total in five games. And although they weren't great on third-down conversions (six of 17), it was their best conversion rate since the 28-26 upset over Seattle on Oct. 19.

"Shaun played a hell of a game," defensive end William Hayes said. "He showed he had guts. He hit a couple of passes where he knew he was gonna take hits, and still delivered the ball."

Hill's best delivery came late in the first quarter, when he threw a deep strike to Britt for a 63-yard touchdown. It was the longest completion of the season for the Rams, and Britt's longest reception since the 2011 season with Tennessee.

It was a post pattern to Britt, a pass that he had dropped during the practice week.
"I told him, 'It's Friday and you drop a pass, that's OK. But if you do it on Sunday I'm going to kick your tail,'" Hill said. "Obviously, I was just joking."

Offensive coordinator Brian Schottenheimer said during his weekly Thursday media session that he thought the Rams would have some chances for deep shots in the passing game. And so it was. Britt was the recipient of 33-yard and 21-yard completions, and the 63-yarder — all in the first half.

One reason the Broncos are first in the NFL in rushing defense is that their safeties frequently play close to the line of scrimmage. On the long TD play, the Rams used Tavon Austin as a decoy, and when a Denver safety came charging up to the line of scrimmage to defend Austin on the 63-yard TD play, Broncos cornerback Bradley Roby had no help after Britt got behind him.

Britt's 128 yards came on just four receptions. It was the first 100-yard receiving game for a Ram this season.

"Hey, it looked like Shaun's been hitting the weight room in his off time, to tell you the truth," Britt said, laughing. "It really showed in practice. Every deep ball was on the money."

Hill has been called a lot of things over his career: Gritty, industrious, smart. Cannon-armed has never been part of the description.
"Compared to most guys in the NFL, it's nowhere close to strong," Hill said. "So it's just kind of funny to hear that."

Britt's TD gave the Rams a 10-0 lead with 1 minute, 10 seconds to go in the opening quarter. It was the only touchdown of the day for the Rams, who went zero for three in the red zone. But they got five field goals by Greg Zuerlein — a single-game career high — and that was enough to hold off Manning and the Broncos.

Rookie running back Tre Mason's first 100-yard day (29 for 113) in the NFL helped the Rams stay balanced and control the clock.

"He keeps his composure," Britt said. "When we got caught up in the moment, he came into the huddle and said, 'Hey guys, Relax. Calm down.'"

And that apparently is what happened. Undoubtedly, both Theodore Hills would approve.

TITLE: Rams' gamble on Britt pays dividends
BYLINE: Jim Thomas, St. Louis Post-Dispatch
DATE: November 19, 2014

Kenny Britt hasn't set the world on fire, but he is providing a spark for the Rams' wide receiver corps.

With 25 catches for 440 yards, Britt is on pace for 40 catches and 700 yards this season. Last week he became the first Rams receiver to top 100 yards in a game with four catches for 128. And his 63-yard touchdown catch from quarterback Shaun Hill on a post-pattern Sunday against Denver marked the Rams' longest reception of the season.

OK, none of those numbers are going to make Megatron, aka Calvin Johnson, jealous. (Although Britt's per-catch average of 17.6 yards might catch his eye.) But considering where Britt's career was at, and where he started in St. Louis, it qualifies as a career revival.

"You can see the potential," coach Jeff Fisher said. "Numbers aren't (great) — he doesn't necessarily have 75 catches right now. But you see he has the potential to make those big plays in a game. I'm sure he'll finish up strong."

After a frustrating 2013 season in Tennessee, where he was basically benched over the second half of the season, Britt signed a one-year "prove-it" deal with the Rams last offseason. It was for a modest $1.4 million, but included incentives that could double the value of the contract.

Because of his falling out with the Titans — just 11 catches for 96 yards in '13 — and his history of off-field issues, there were no promises made in St. Louis.

"Not at all," Britt said. "My mindset was coming in like a rookie, learning the system, being a great teammate, and working from the bottom up. They didn't give me any special treatment, like, 'Hey, you're gonna start. You're gonna be with the 1s and 2s.'

"When I came here, I was the last receiver on the bench. I had to get to know the playbook. I had to get to know the quarterbacks."

And that's how things went during the OTAs in June and the first week or so of training camp. But when the team released its first depth chart of the season in early August, Britt was listed as a starter. The Rams had decided to go big at wide receiver with Britt (6-3, 223) and Brian Quick (6-3, 218) as the starters lining up outside.

But the Rams lost that element to a degree when Quick was lost for the season with a shoulder injury in the Oct. 26 Kansas City game. Britt has scored two of his three touchdowns since then, and judging by what happened against Denver, he and Hill have a good chemistry.

"He's a veteran guy; a guy that I'd play with any day," Britt said of Hill.

Britt feels the same way about the rest of the Rams. In fact, after the team's 13-10 road upset of San Francisco on Nov. 9, unsolicited, Britt talked about how much he enjoys playing with the team and how much he'd like to return in 2015 and beyond.

He has since reiterated why he wants to come back.

"One is Jeff Fisher," Britt said. "I had a great experience with him when he was with the Titans, and he's doing a great job as we see with the St. Louis Rams."

The other main reason for wanting to return, Britt said, is the team chemistry in the meeting room, the locker room, and on the field.

"I've been in the NFL for going on six years, and this is the first time I've been in a locker room like this, where everybody's all committed — all the guys," he said. "I'm telling you, I've never been in a locker room like this — ever — in my career."

Britt says players on both sides of the ball come to work every day trying to get better, and push each other to do so. He said there is no selfishness of "somebody waiting for somebody to mess up to get ahead."

As of now, there are have been no known communications between the Rams and Britt's agent. It could be that the Rams want to see how their younger wide receivers develop over the rest of the season, and also see how Britt himself performs in the season's final six games.

Of course, with Quick expected to be sidelined until the start of training camp following his shoulder surgery and with Austin Pettis no longer on the team, it might make sense to get Britt under contract again if the price is right.

Even if there were negotiations going on at this time, Britt isn't sure he'd want to hear about them at this point.

"Right now, I just want to focus on this year," he said. "This is my sixth year and I've never been in the playoffs."

The postseason is still mathematically possible for the Rams in 2014, but they'd probably have to run the table to get there. Even so, Britt sees possibilities for the future.

"Hopefully I can stay here after this season and be in this locker room," he said. "It's hard to put a team together like this in the locker room, with this chemistry.

"These guys like to work and like coming to work. The coaching staff as well. You don't have coaches that I'd say were uptight — that you don't want to be around. Everybody can be their self and everybody can go on the field and be their self."

ST. LOUIS RAMS FEATURE CLIPS

TITLE: Barksdale a bedrock for Rams' O-Line
BYLINE: Nick Wagoner, ESPN.com
DATE: September 20, 2014

Little more than a year after the Oakland Raiders used a third-round draft pick on offensive tackle Joe Barksdale, they released him.

It was Sept. 26, 2012, just one of a handful of days over the past couple of years now permanently etched in Barksdale's mind. The next was Sept. 27, 2012, a day later when the St. Louis Rams claimed him off waivers.

Barksdale arrived in St. Louis with enough raw talent to develop into the bedrock of an often in flux offensive line that he is today but without any of the self-belief necessary to get there.

"When I got here, I was a recently cut former draft pick with no confidence, not many technical skills," Barksdale said. "But I believe I'm here for a reason and I'm so happy to be here. I do believe that everything did happen for a reason, when it was supposed to and how it was supposed to."

What's happened in the nearly two years since Barksdale arrived in St. Louis is more than anyone knows. It's easy to look at the resume he's compiled and see a young player simply emerging as a solid right tackle providing durability to a line in desperate need of it.

But the road from there to here hasn't been as easy as it might seem.

When the Rams claimed Barksdale in 2012, they were simply searching for help on the offensive line after some injuries had struck. That's been a familiar refrain in recent seasons.

Offensive line coach Paul Boudreau saw the 6-foot-5, 326-pound Barksdale as his next great reclamation project, if only he could get Barksdale to have the same belief.

For as much work as Barksdale needed on footwork, hand placement and understanding of angles, he needed regular reminders he could get there.

"His thing is more confidence in everything," Boudreau said. "Joe is his own worst critic. He's his own worst enemy. I tell him I will do all the worrying for you and you get out there and you play."

That confidence came quickly for Barksdale, who said he genuinely started buying into Boudreau's belief when he started at left tackle against Green Bay on Oct. 21, 2012. He started again the following week in London against New England and graded out well in both games.

After starting those two games and appearing in four more, Barksdale returned in 2013 primed to be the primary swing tackle behind Rodger Saffold and Jake Long. He spent part of his offseason working with Hall of Fame Rams offensive tackle Jackie Slater; something he repeated this summer, and came back ready for whatever role was needed.

As it turned out, projected right tackle Saffold suffered an injury early in the preseason and again in Week 2 of the regular season. Before Barksdale was to start the next week against Dallas, tragedy struck.

Charles Fobbs, who Barksdale calls a mentor, second father, brother and coach since he was 13 years old, died in a car accident before the Rams played the Cowboys.

Barksdale was devastated by the loss and attended the funeral back home in Michigan in search of some peace of mind. When he returned to St. Louis, he found solace on the football field, in his teammates and from his coaches.

Boudreau, in particular, knew what Barksdale was going through. His father had passed away not long before Fobbs, and Boudreau was still reeling from his own loss. Boudreau offered daily encouragement and reminded Barksdale that the best way to get through a tough time is simply to do it.

"I said you have a job to do and when you're at work, it might be the best thing for you, it might be the best therapy for you," Boudreau said. "He kind of knew it was somebody walking his shoes. It's going to always hurt and I said the anniversary of that will be the same thing for you and when you go back to Michigan you'll see his family and it will be a tough time for you, but I think in his case, he's grown up more than anything since he's been a Ram."

With each practice and game, Barksdale grew as a player as he dedicated himself to improving. By the time the season was through, Barksdale had started 13 games and played in all 16. For what it's worth, Pro Football Focus graded him as the team's second most productive lineman.

Amidst the revolving doors at other positions on the line, Barksdale remains steadfast on the right side. Boudreau points out Barksdale is no longer dwelling on mistakes. Barksdale has even set big goals for himself, starting with winning a Super Bowl, making the Pro Bowl and eventually the Hall of Fame.

In this training camp, Barksdale has been the one constant on the offensive line, playing with the starters at the same position every day.

"Joe's done a great job," coach Jeff Fisher said. "Joe's stepped in and played. He's played both sides for us, settled in on the right side. He's reliable, dependable, everything you want at right tackle. It was great timing for us, great timing for Joe, when he was let go and we had an opportunity to bring him in and he's done a great job."

After the season, Barksdale is scheduled to become an unrestricted free agent. More important, he's also in the midst of planning a wedding. He says he spends much more time thinking of the latter than the former when he's not practicing his newest hobby, the electric guitar.

Given his druthers, Barksdale would like to stay in St. Louis.

"Definitely," Barksdale said. "They gave me a second chance."

TITLE: Jeff Fisher's mettle lifts St. Louis to big win over Seahawks
BYLINE: Michael Silver, NFL.com
DATE: October 20, 2014

The climax was playing out like another Edward Jones Dome nightmare, the home team on the verge of surrendering what was left of a once-healthy advantage and suffering another disheartening defeat.

Like everyone in the stadium Sunday, not to mention millions of television viewers, St. Louis Rams coach Jeff Fisher could see the way this one was heading, what with his win-starved team clinging to a two-point lead and about to punt the ball back to the Seattle Seahawks and their red-hot quarterback, Russell Wilson, from deep in its own territory with just under three minutes remaining.

It was the perfect time for a stunning plot twist -- and who better to provide one than The 'Stache?

In January of 2000, Fisher brought us The Music City Miracle, giving his Tennessee Titans an unfathomable playoff victory over the Buffalo Bills.

Last May, Fisher electrified the Rams' unsuspecting draft room -- and made an historic move no one saw coming -- when he selected Michael Sam, who was bidding to become the NFL's first openly gay player.

At Sunday's pivotal moment, as is his custom, Fisher kept even his closest confidantes in the dark. When he sent in the fake-punt call on fourth-and-3 from the Rams' 18, only a dozen others were in on the audacious ploy: special teams coach John Fassel and the 11 men in the huddle.

Music City Miracle, meet the St. Louis Surprise.

Punter Johnny Hekker took the snap, waited for Benny Cunningham to flash open on the left and delivered a short pass that the running back caught and turned into an 18-yard gain. The Rams (2-4) would get another first down and kill the clock -- though not until sweating out a Tre Mason fumble and ensuing scrum -- to close out a 28-26 victory over the defending Super Bowl champs.

It's not too much of a stretch to say that the Rams, who've struggled in the wake of quarterback Sam Bradford's second torn ACL in less than a year, may have salvaged their season by upsetting the Seahawks (3-3). Having blown leads of 21 (to the Dallas Cowboys) and 14 (to the San Francisco 49ers) in their previous two home games, the notion of squandering a 21-3 edge to Seattle was one that Fisher couldn't stomach.

In fact, before the Rams ran their first-down play from their own 11 on that final possession, Fisher approached Fassel and told him to "make sure (Hekker's) ready" because a fake punt might be in the works on fourth down.

"They had such momentum," Fisher explained on his drive home from the Dome, his voice a mixture of relief and excitement. "And look -- Russell Wilson's really good. We had them down, and he took it over. So no, we wanted no part of him at the end."

Wilson, in the wake of a wild week that featured the stunning trade of playmaker Percy Harvin to the New York Jets and a broken foot suffered by fullback Derrick Coleman in pregame warmups, was superlative in the second half, finishing with 313 passing yards and 106 rushing yards on seven carries. Game manager? Yeah, right.

St. Louis, riding with a pair of former third-stringers in the backfield -- quarterback Austin Davis (18 of 21, 152 yards, two touchdowns, no interceptions) and Mason (18 carries, 85 yards, one TD) -- needed a full-squad effort to prevail.

And, amazingly, the fake punt wasn't even St. Louis' most impressive special-teams stunt. That came midway through the second quarter when the Seahawks, trailing 14-3, punted from their own 49 -- and the Rams countered with a well-rehearsed ensemble performance that turned deception into an art form.

With Jon Ryan's high punt sailing toward the right (from the Rams' perspective) sideline, return man Tavon Austin and nine other Rams drifted to the left to set up a phantom runback. As Austin pretended to wait for a ball that was headed to the opposite hash mark, the Seahawks dutifully followed, buying the ruse even as he fell backward for effect, presumably gunning for that Oscar nomination.

Meanwhile, Rams receiver Stedman Bailey tracked the ball, made a nice over-the-shoulder catch and, still largely unde-tected, turned and raced down the right sideline for a 90-yard score.

"What you have to understand is that they're so good on special teams, and that's what allowed us to run that play," Fisher said. "Their punter is money -- we knew if they were between the 45-yard lines he'd hit it end over end with great hang time, and put it on the numbers. We needed the kind of kick that would (theoretically) force a fair catch, and we knew he'd give it to us, and that's why it worked.

"We scripted that play in practice and ran it over and over, and it pretty much played out that way. Tavon did a little too much -- the falling over backwards, I don't know where he gets that -- but Sted made a sweet catch, and then we got him some help and pulled it off."

Facing the prospect of having to defend Wilson on a potential game-winning drive, the Rams needed just a little bit of help -- and Fisher gave it to them, in the form of the Hekker to Cunningham completion that might have kept their playoff dreams flickering.

"Hey," Fisher said, "whatever it takes."

For this team, at this moment, it's a legitimate mantra -- and there's nothing fake about it.

TITLE: Hayes rady to step in for his friend, Long
BYLINE: Nick Wagoner, ESPN.com
DATE: September 12, 2014

St. Louis Rams defensive lineman William Hayes was a hit in the team's locker room from the day he first arrived in St. Louis back in 2012. He immediately grew close with most of his teammates, especially on the defensive line.

In his nearly three years with the Rams, there's nobody Hayes has grown closer to than fellow defensive end Chris Long. When the news came Wednesday that Long would need ankle surgery that would keep him out for eight to 10 weeks, nobody took the news harder than Hayes.

"He's one of my closest friends on the team so it's kind of hard when you hear he is not going to be here but we've got a next-man-up philosophy around here," Hayes said.

As it turns out, the next man up in Long's absence is Hayes. In Hayes, Long's left defensive end spot lands in more than capable hands. Amongst the free agents whiffs the Rams have had since coach Jeff Fisher and general manager Les Snead took over, Hayes has been on the opposite end of the spectrum as a true diamond in the rough find.

Hayes first signed with the Rams in 2012, following Fisher to St. Louis from Tennessee, where he was once a fourth-round pick out of Winston-Salem State. In the time since, he's become the defensive line's ultimate Swiss Army Knife, providing a stout presence against the run from his end position while offering pass rush ability from the interior.

Over those two season in St. Louis, Hayes has 63 tackles and 12 sacks while working in a reserve role.

The other side to Long's absence is the loss of his fiery brand of leadership. That's another area where Hayes can help provide some cover. Most of the other defensive linemen tend to err on the quiet side but Hayes is the same player who smashed a mirror in the team's locker room after last season's loss to Tennessee, a blow that led to him getting stitches in his arm.

Even without Long, the Rams are confident in what Hayes brings to the table.

"We know that Will Hayes can get the job done," defensive tackle Kendall Langford said. "Whoever we put out there on the field, we are a brotherhood of men and we trust in each other that we'll get the job done. I don't think it will be a drop off."

While Hayes figures to get the first shot at replacing Long, it's important to note that it will take more than just one player to fill the void. Hayes is still working his way back into football shape from a trio of offseason surgeries, the most serious of which was a hip procedure. He did not play in any preseason games and was admittedly rusty in his return to game action last week.

Likewise, the Rams would like to limit his snaps when possible to keep him fresh, as evidenced by his 27 snaps against Minnesota last week. That means the Rams will turn to fellow veteran backup Eugene Sims and undrafted rookie Ethan Westbrooks to ease the burden.

For his part, the always motivated Hayes has even more motivation to play well in Long's stead. He's replacing a good player but an even better friend.

"I hate the idea that Chris got hurt but at the end of the day, things happen and the next man has to step up," Hayes said. "I just don't want to be a drop off this week, that's one of the big things. I feel like he would be disappointed in me if I was to go out there this week and just really [struggle]."

ST. LOUIS RAMS FEATURE CLIPS

TITLE: Rams' McSafeties getting their act down
BYLINE: Jim Thomas, St. Louis Post-Dispatch
DATE: September 17, 2014

That little shimmy by free safety Rodney McLeod after his second-quarter interception was no impromptu celebration.
"It's just a little dance that me and T.J. (McDonald) put together right before the game," he said.

Apparently, it's part of the weekly pregame ritual for the Rams' McSafeties. It's all about being prepared for success.
"If we make plays, this is what we're gonna do today," McLeod explained. "It's just something that we've got going on."

McLeod told McDonald before Sunday's 19-17 victory over Tampa Bay that he was going to get an interception.
Hard to explain but he just had that feeling.

"I thought if we got good pressure on (Josh) McCown, he'd most likely to throw one up," McLeod said.
McCown, the Tampa Bay quarterback, did just that early in the second quarter of a 7-7 game. The Bucs were knocking on the door with a first-and-goal from the St. Louis 9.

But linebacker Jo-Lonn Dunbar flushed McCown out of the pocket on a blitz, and then linebacker James Laurinaitis came bearing down on McCown. Instead of taking the sack, or throwing the ball away, McCown threw it up for grabs in the general direction of wide receiver Vincent Jackson.

There was just one problem with that decision: Jackson was being double-covered, with cornerback Janoris Jenkins behind him and McLeod in front.

"He did a crossing route," McLeod said. "Basically I just read the quarterback. He made a bad decision and James got good pressure on him."

It wasn't an easy interception. The ball was thrown low and away, and McLeod lunged to keep it off the ground.
"Gotta give credit to the hands, the gloves. Fresh gloves," McLeod said, laughing.
McLeod wears a new set of gloves each week on game day.

"That was a big point (in the game)," McDonald said of his teammate's play. "They were close to scoring, we don't give up any points. We give the ball back to our offense, get a lot of juice, a little momentum going."

It marked the first interception, and only takeaway, for the Rams this season. Without McLeod's INT, the third of his three-year NFL career, the outcome might've been different. Even if Tampa had to settle for a field goal, that might have been enough in what turned out to be a two-point game.

McLeod joined the Rams in 2012, the first year of the Jeff Fisher-Les Snead regime, as an undrafted rookie out of Virginia. He led the Rams in special teams tackles that year (16), then took advantage of preseason injuries to Darian Stewart to earn a job at safety in 2013. He started all 16 games, recording 87 tackles and two interceptions.

Even so, the general consensus this past offseason was that the Rams needed to upgrade the position, find a free safety with more range.

Granted, it's just two games into the season, but McLeod is proving doubters wrong. He has shown improved range and has taken quickly to defensive coordinator Greg Williams' system.

"I think it just comes with experience, and the coaching we get from OTAs to training camp with Gregg coming in, and Chuck (Cecil), and all those guys just getting us right," McLeod said.

Cecil is the Rams' secondary coach.

Even before the start of the regular season, Williams has been impressed with McLeod.

"Rodney has just been one of the most pleasant surprises for me — his instincts on playing the free safety position," Williams told the Post-Dispatch in a late-August interview.

"Chuck Cecil did a good job talking to me about him when I first got here. Chuck was very high on him and wanted me to make sure that I was patient with the evaluation process on him. I think Rodney does a phenomenal job on picking up the nuances of how we want our safeties to play."

Williams continued: "The free safety and the middle linebacker have to be a direct extension of the play-caller and what we do. He's sharp intellectually. He's sharp in big-picture understanding of the game."

An added bonus is that McLeod has become a more aggressive tackler this season than he showed previously, whether it be in coverage or in run support.

"I just think it's the mentality that Gregg instilled in us from Day 1," McLeod. "You know the mentality that he has."

Yeah, if you're coming in this neighborhood, you're going to have to pay a toll.

"There's been nothing but good stuff going on from Day 1 in this system," McLeod said.
It's a system not too different from the scheme run in 2012, when Williams was serving his one-year "Bountygate" suspension and his son Blake was de facto defensive coordinator.

Now in their second season starting together, McLeod and strong safety McDonald are developing a good rapport on the field.

They complement each other well, with McLeod usually playing deep in coverage, and McDonald frequently playing near the line of scrimmage, or blitzing, or covering tight ends.

"With T.J., what I don't have, he has," McLeod said. "We just work well together. It just works out."
Fisher likes the way things are working out so far.

"Both the safeties have played very well the last two weeks," Fisher said. "Now, we missed some tackles, but everybody's going to miss tackles. ... But I think considering where we were last year, they've come a long, long way. I'm happy for them."

ST. LOUIS RAMS FEATURE CLIPS

TITLE: 'Mountaineer' play special to Bailey
BYLINE: Joe Lyons, St. Louis Post-Dispatch
DATE: October 20, 2014

Rams receiver Stedman Bailey isn't likely to forget his first career punt return. And neither will anyone else who watched it Sunday as the Rams defeated the Seattle Seahawks 28-26 at the Edward Jones Dome.

With the Rams up 14-3 midway through the second quarter and Seattle punting from its own 49, Rams special teams coordinator John Fassel called for "Mountaineer."

"It's a designed play that we actually put in this week," Bailey explained. "Coach Bones (Fassel) saw the Bears try it a few years back — it worked for them, too, but it was called back on a penalty. He noticed that when (Seattle's) punter tried to sky it, to pin us deep, the punt always ended up in pretty much the same spot."

So with almost all of the Rams, including return man Tavon Austin, racing toward the left sideline — and drawing the pursuit of the the Seahawks — Bailey peeled off from his spot on the opposite side of the field, came up with an over-the-shoulder catch, turned and raced 90 yards down the sideline for a touchdown that pushed the Rams' lead to 21-3.

"Just a dream come true, really," said Bailey, who had never fielded a punt in a game before. "Honestly didn't think it'd work as well as it did, but our guys, especially Tavon, did a great job of selling it. They all went to the right and (the Seahawks) went that way, too.

"I caught the ball, turned around and saw a lot of green grass and a couple of our guys in front of me. Then I just ran for my life."

The misdirection could not have worked any better.

"We practiced it all week," tight end and special teamer Cory Harkey said. "When the coaches dialed it up, we were all pretty pumped."

Running back and special teamer Chase Reynolds agreed: "When we watched the tape and saw everybody from the coverage team drawn away from the ball, it was crazy. It seemed like my guy was thinking about going to the left, so I really had to overplay to the right and he ended up following. Their guys just kind of followed the herd, I guess.

"It seemed like everything on that play came together for us and 'Sted' did the rest."

Rams coach Jeff Fisher said he discussed the play with Fassel on Wednesday, worked on it through the rest of the week and decided to give it a shot with 7:24 to play before halftime.

"It was an automatic based on field position," Fisher said. "When they saw Tavon running over, they probably thought the ball was mis-hit. The down side was that (Bailey) doesn't catch it, the ball goes in the end zone (and) it's a touchback or it's downed. The up side was we felt like if (Bailey) was able to field it, then we had a chance to probably put some points on the board."

Bailey credited fellow ex-University of West Virginia Mountaineer Austin for making the play work, while Austin deflected the praise to Fassel.

"I feel like we have the best special teams coach in the NFL," Austin said. "He drew it up and got us to believe it could work. Everybody worked together to make it work and 'Sted' finished it off with a great return."

But the "Mountaineer" return wasn't the only game-changing effort turned in by the Rams special teams on Sunday.

After Seattle opened the scoring with a Steven Hauschka field goal, Benny Cunningham returned the ensuing kickoff 75 yards to the Seahawks' 31. Six plays later, rookie Tre Mason picked up his first NFL touchdown with a 6-yard scoring run.

"Tre got the first defender, giving me a chance to make a move, and the next thing I remember is Cody Davis making a block that opened up some more space. From there, I just took it as far as I could," Cunningham said said. "Any time you can make play like that, a play that can provide a spark for the offense, it feels incredible."

Cunningham, who led the Rams in receiving with five catches for 46 yards, hauled in a 5-yard pass from Austin Davis for a second-quarter touchdown that put the Rams on top 14-3 and added a 18-yard catch on a pass from punter Johnny Hekker on a fourth-and-3 fake from the Rams' 18 with just under three minutes left. That allowed the Rams to keep the ball and eventually close out the two-point victory over the reigning Super Bowl champs.

"You have to tip your hat to Coach Fisher for having the (guts) to make tough calls like that, knowing the game was on the line,'' Bailey said. "He showed faith in us and we went out and we executed.''

Cunningham said the pass from Hekker, with Bailey and Reynolds running clear-out routes, is one that is practiced regularly at Rams Park.

"Johnny and I stay after practice to work on that play — 10 reps, five to each side of the field,'' Cunningham said. "I think it's great that the coaches had faith in us to try something like that.''

Cunningham felt like Sunday's special-teams' effort was owed to Fassel.

"It's a proud moment when you can go out and make plays for a coach who works so hard for you,'' the second-year pro from Middle Tennessee State said.

TITLE: Harkey's toughness energizes Rams
BYLINE: Nick Wagoner, ESPN.com
DATE: September 17, 2014

The St. Louis Rams have already lost key players such as quarterback Sam Bradford, and defensive end Chris Long to serious injuries that will require rehabilitation.

Bradford is out for the season with a knee injury, and Long is on injured reserve but designated to return after ankle surgery. But neither of those injuries looked as bad when they happened as the one tight end Cory Harkey suffered on Sunday in Tampa Bay.

Late in the third quarter, Harkey caught a pass from quarterback Austin Davis in the left flat, but Tampa Bay safety Dashon Goldson quickly closed in on Harkey and hit him square in the left knee. Harkey managed to limp off the field, but the hit looked bad enough that it could keep him out for a long time.

"That was a rough hit," Rams coach Jeff Fisher said. "Now when you saw it, that's a byproduct of the league and the rule changes. Goldson's a good football player, and that's one that you just don't like to see. We feared, I feared for the worst on it until he got to the sideline."

For his part, Harkey said even he was shaken up by the hit.

"Obviously, it was a shock. It was scary, but I knew once I was able to get up and kind of walk off that I was going to be OK, which is a good thing," Harkey said. "And God is looking out for me. But yeah, it was scary."

When Harkey returned to the sideline, he wasted no time lobbying to return to the game, a campaign that proved successful. He was on the field on the next drive and caught a pass for 6 yards about 15 minutes (in game time) after taking the hit.

That Harkey returned and contributed was a surprise to everyone except those who have seen him go from undrafted rookie to a valuable, multipurpose piece of the offense -- and one of the team's resident tough guys.

"We knew, we knew Cory was a tough guy," Fisher said. "He loves the game, and the docs felt structurally he was going to be okay. We were going to change some personnel groups and Cory said, 'No, don't change them. I'm going back in,' so very impressed with him."

TITLE: Ogletree is back up to speed
BYLINE: Jim Thomas, St. Louis Post-Dispatch
DATE: November 21, 2014

With six games to go, it's neck-and-neck once again for the team tackling title between linebackers James Laurinaitis and Alec Ogletree.

"Right now?" Ogletree said after Thursday's practice.

Yes, 10 games into 2014, Ogletree and Laurinaitis have 103 tackles apiece entering Sunday's contest at San Diego. "It's definitely good to have a guy like that to compete against," Ogletree said. "I definitely think he's one of the top line-backers in the league. We're just trying to be a great duo out there on the field."

After leading the Rams in tackles in each of his first four seasons in the league, Laurinaitis was edged out by Ogletree last season when Ogletree finished with 155 as a rookie to the 144 stops posted by Laurinaitis.

But it's not like either player is rushing to the Rams' PR staff after each game to check on their tackling totals.

"Tell you what, I try do whatever I can do to help the team win," Laurinaitis said. "And he'll say the same thing. At the end of the day, I don't care how many tackles — you can give me two in a game — if we get the 'W,' that's all I care about."

Right. Like Laurinaitis ever had just two tackles in a game.

In any event, for much of September and October, it didn't look like Ogletree would be competing for much of anything. He wasn't playing terribly, but he wasn't displaying the flash he did for about the final two-thirds of his rookie campaign in 2013.

On several occasions earlier this season, Ogletree lost contain on the edge, leading to some big runs on the perimeter. And at times he struggled in coverage, leading to some easy completions by the opposition. At his best, Ogletree is a run-and-hit linebacker, and there were a couple of plays where there wasn't enough "run" to make the hit — that is, he didn't look as fast as usual.

But these past few games, particularly vs. Arizona and Denver, the light switch has come on in a big way.

Against Denver, he had 12 tackles, an interception and a pass breakup. The interception came on the first play of the fourth quarter when he stepped in front of a pass intended for Broncos tight end Jacob Tamme over the middle. It set up the fourth of five Greg Zuerlein field goals in the Rams' 22-7 victory.

Ogletree also snuffed out Denver's last chance for any kind of comeback with 2 ½ minutes left to play when he batted down a Peyton Manning pass on fourth-and-1 from the St. Louis 41.

A week earlier, in the 31-14 loss at Arizona, Ogletree also had 12 tackles and an interception, which he returned 44 yards. His day also included a forced fumble, two pass breakups and a quarterback hit.

"For whatever reason, he's triggering faster, and he's made the plays that have come to him," Laurinaitis said. "He made a great play in Arizona for that 'pick.' Last week, he does what he's coached to do on a seam route — makes a great catch.

"He's just flashing. For whatever reason, he's playing faster. And I like to see that out of him, because when he plays fast he can be a destructive force."

Lately, the Rams have had players "flashing" at every level of their defense — D-line, linebackers and in the secondary. And that's one reason why the unit has played so well lately. Adding Ogletree to that group recently has helped take the defense to a new level.

"Alec's playing at a really high level the last few weeks," coach Jeff Fisher said Monday. "He's making a lot of plays. I think he's got a much better feel for what he's doing.

"It took him a while to get in good shape. And we're using him a lot more behind the ball, as opposed to just lining up on the line of scrimmage and the tight end."

In the third week of November, Fisher also slipped in a line about Ogletree showing up to training camp out of shape. It's as if Fisher wanted it out there, on the record — a little nudge in Ogletree's direction not to let it happen again.

Because once the regular season arrives, and you're basically practicing only three days a week, it's hard to play yourself into shape.

When asked if he was on the sportswriters' diet during the five-week break between the conclusion of OTAs in June and the start of training camp in late July, Ogletree laughed and said: "No. I just ate a little more than what I should. But for the most part right now I feel pretty healthy and feel pretty much in shape."

Ogletree added, that he "wasn't super overweight or anything" when he reported to camp. But pro football players are like finely-tuned machines: being just a little off can make a difference.

"You definitely have to try to keep yourself in shape in the offseason," Ogletree said. "And going into this (next) year, I'll definitely do more of that. ... I should've done a better job of coming back at the right weight and stuff like that."

Meanwhile, Manning must have left St. Louis glad about one thing: Ogletree doesn't play in the same division. Because during a 2013 preseason game — the key third preseason game when the Broncos were taking their high-tempo offense out for a spin — Ogletree prevented what looked like a sure TD by knocking a Manning pass away in the end zone.

And he made a quick-reaction interception over the middle in that game in Denver, a play that had Manning shaking his head as he walked off the field.

"It's definitely exciting picking off one of the greatest players in the league," Ogletree said.

TITLE: Rams' Donald off to a promising start
BYLINE: Joe Lyons, St. Louis Post-Dispatch
DATE: September 26, 2014

It's only three games, but it's safe to say that Rams rookie defensive tackle Aaron Donald has made a favorable first impression.

Selected with the 13th overall pick in May, the 6-foot-1, 285-pounder from the University of Pittsburgh ranks second among the team's defensive linemen with 16 overall tackles. He also has a sack and three tackles for loss.

"I've been able to make a few plays, which is good, but my focus is still working every day to try and get better,'' Donald said following practice earlier this week. "The game at this level is faster, much faster, and the guys you're playing against are a lot better. The offensive linemen are a lot more athletic and can move a lot better.

"The big thing for me, I think, is working to become more consistent.''

Fellow defensive tackle Kendall Langford, in his seventh season, has been impressed by Donald.

"We knew he was a guy who'd won numerous awards in college; we knew he was a football player,'' Langford said. "His first step, his quickness off the ball, is unbelievable, and he's also strong. He's just a good football player.

"And he's stepped right in. For a lot of guys making the step from college, there's an adjustment period. But Aaron came in and just kept it going.''

Donald said that being accepted right away by the defensive line made him feel comfortable — and responsible.

"When I go out there, I have to show up. I want to make plays,'' the 23-year-old said. "I'm learning a lot from the guys around me and I want those guys to know that they can count on me and trust me to go out and do my job.''

TITLE: Tick bite sent Rams' Wells to intensive care
BYLINE: Jim Thomas, St. Louis Post-Dispatch
DATE: September 30, 2014

Center Scott Wells didn't finish the final week of Rams practices in June, then missed a good portion of training camp. It was thought that he had some kind of virus, and lost some weight.

Turns out it was much worse than that, and could have been fatal had it not been treated in time.

"I had a bacterial infection from a tick bite," Wells told the Post-Dispatch. "It's called ehrlichia. It's similar to Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever. I was in intensive care for four days that last week'' of offseason practices.

Wells said it started with flu symptoms, then the illness escalated quickly.

"At first, it seemed like a head cold," Wells said. "Congestion. I had an ear that was stopped up, but it wasn't infected. I would have night sweats, chills, body aches — all the same things consistent with the flu. But it wasn't flu season."

He was being treated for the symptoms, basically as if it were some sort of virus or flu. But when Wells' urine was brown — dark brown — he knew something was wrong.

He was admitted to a hospital for tests on the Wednesday afternoon of the last week of practices in June.

"Wednesday night I was put in ICU," Wells said. "From the way (doctors) explained it to me, it attacks your bone marrow and starts to shut down your immune system so you can't fight it off. Then your organs start to shut down trying to fight it off.

"So it went from what seemed to be just a cold virus, flu-like symptoms, to really sick really fast."

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the fatality rate for ehrlichia is 1.8 percent — or nearly one in 50.

Even before the blood test results came back, he was given antibiotics to treat ehrlichia. On the second day of receiving antibiotics, Wells said his temperature reached 104.5 degrees

"Then it came down pretty fast," he said. "I was on antibiotics for another 10 days. The antibiotics made everything taste funny. So I didn't have an appetite, lost a whole bunch of weight in the hospital."

Wells dropped 20 pounds during the four days he was in the hospital.

Not necessarily so.

We spray our yard, and our pets weren't at home," Wells said. "They were back in Tennessee (which is where Wells is from). I mean, you can get a tick anywhere. You can get a tick in a grocery store. And the one that causes this is a small tick. They said it's like a freckle when they bite you. Half the people that get it don't even recognize it. They never find it."

Once training camp started, the Rams took a cautious approach to working Wells back into the practice routine and into preseason action because he had lost all that weight just a month before the start of camp.

"It took some time to gain the weight back," Wells said. "I was in great shape when I got sick, and the doctor said that's what helped me get through it. But I'm healthy now. I'm fine now. There's no residual long-term effects from it. Everything is normal."

Because of the severity and the unusual nature of the illness, Rams coach Jeff Fisher didn't want to reveal the information, basically leaving that up to Wells.

Now that he has been back in the lineup for the first three games of the regular season, Wells had no problem speaking of his ordeal.

"To me it's important to educate the public on this, because everybody knows (tick bites) exist," Wells said. "But until you're hit with it, you don't really understand how significant it is.

"It changed my whole perspective. If any of my kids, anybody I know, gets flu symptoms and it's not flu season, check it out. Because you'd rather know early than late."

For Wells, it was another setback — a potentially life-threatening setback — since signing a free-agent contract with the team before the 2012 season.

Wells, who had been durable during his time in Green Bay, suffered a fractured fibula last Dec. 1, missing the final four games of the season.

In 2012, a broken foot in the season opener sidelined Wells for nine games.

This summer's tick-borne illness resulted in Wells sitting out the exhibition opener, although he did play in Game 2 (against Green Bay) and Game 3 (Cleveland) of the preseason.

TITLE: Tre Mason gives Rams just what they need
BYLINE: Nick Wagoner, ESPN.com
DATE: November 16, 2014

Let there be no lingering doubt: Tre Mason is the St. Louis Rams' starting running back and primary ball carrier.

If that wasn't already evident before the Rams' 22-7 victory against the Denver Broncos on Sunday, it should be plenty clear in the aftermath. Against the league's best run defense both in terms of yards allowed per game (67) and yards allowed per carry (3.19), Mason registered the first 100-yard game of his career and the most rushing yards against Denver this season. He finished with 113 yards on 29 carries, a middling but deceptive average of 3.9 yards per attempt.

"That's how you have to beat this team," Rams coach Jeff Fisher said.

While that average won't blow anyone away, the fact that Mason even got to 29 carries is a feat in and of itself. The Broncos had faced the fewest rushing attempts in the league this year, in no small part because they often shut down the run early and jump out to big leads.

But Mason was effective enough early on that the offense was able to move the ball and keep Broncos quarterback Peyton Manning on the sideline. Although the Rams defense was doing just fine on its own, it's a widely accepted theory that the best defense against Manning is often a good offense, especially one that can run the ball consistently.

"You have got to have that mindset, got to get first downs, got to stay on the field," Mason said. "I was doing everything in my power to keep us on the field."

Mason and the Rams did just that, controlling the battle in time of possession by keeping the ball for 35 minutes and 50 seconds to Denver's 24:10. They had 16 first downs and rushed for 131 yards on 33 carries as a team, their best output of the season on the ground.

And while Mason spent plenty of time hammering away between the tackles, he was also also able to shake loose for a big gain every once in a while. His 27-yard run was his fourth 20-plus-yard carry of the season; he remains the only Ram to do that this season.

Clearly, the Rams trust Mason enough to turn the game over to him, too. His 29 carries were the most by a Ram this season by 10. Even if many of those runs didn't get very far, Mason's performance was instrumental in taking the Rams to an unexpected victory.

"That's just the way football is," Mason said. "Sometimes you have got to grind them out. It might not be a big play every play, but you've got to grind them out sometimes. That extra 1 or 2 [yards] means a lot when you're on the goal line, so if you're on the goal line, it can be the difference between a score and a first down."

TITLE: Robinson takes over at left tackle
BYLINE: Jim Thomas, St. Louis Post Dispatch
DATE: October 31, 2014

The Rams drafted Greg Robinson to be their tackle of the future. Following Jake Long's season-ending knee injury against Kansas City, the future is now.

Robinson, the No. 2 overall pick in the 2014 draft, will make his first NFL start at left tackle Sunday in San Francisco. After four weeks of watching and learning, Robinson started the past three games at left guard.

But now he's at left tackle, the position he played all through college at Auburn. His spot.

Or as offensive coordinator Brian Schottenheimer put it: "Greg's playing a position that he's very, very comfortable with."

Robinson said: "It's just a little more natural to me. When I was at guard, I was learning. But I feel like it helped me learn the offense a lot, along with knowing what the guys on the side of me are thinking."

As the saying goes, playing guard or center is like playing in a phone booth. It's a confined space, and there isn't much time to think or adjust on the fly. The opponent gets on you quickly.

At tackle, there's a little more space, and a split-second more to think and react.

"I can use the space," Robinson said, smiling. "I'm a big guy. It's hard stay low when you're at guard and stuff like that. I'm gonna just try my best to stay focused and focus on my angles. Do my best when we get out there."

Throughout training camp and the preseason, and even early in the regular season, Robinson spent time at both guard and tackle. It didn't seem like a good idea at the time; why not concentrate on just one spot?

But now that Long is done for the year, those reps at tackle gave Robinson a bit of a base at the position and made the transition easier this week.

"We've done a lot of extra little things with him, and he understands what we're doing," coach Jeff Fisher said. "We've got all the confidence in the world in Greg. He's going to continue to get better and better."

Having a full week of practice at left tackle helped Robinson brush up on fundamentals such as pass-sets, which obviously are different at tackle than guard.

"He's working through a few things," Schottenheimer said. "The comfort level, he'll get right back into it. System-wise, he's done an amazing job with that. He's light years ahead of where he was even probably a month ago with the system."

There's not much finesse to the San Francisco defensive front. When the Rams played the 49ers just three weeks ago, it marked Robinson's first NFL start. Playing inside at left guard, he frequently ran into San Francisco star Justin Smith — a five-time Pro Bowler and one of the strongest players in the league. They had some violent collisions.

"That was a tough game, but I enjoyed it," Robinson said.

"I wouldn't say I will miss it," Robinson said grinning. "But I wouldn't say won't miss it."

Besides losing Long for the season in Kansas City, the Rams also had guard Rodger Saffold (shoulder) and center Scott Wells (elbow) leave the game and not return because of injuries.

But after all was said and done this week in practice, the Rams' offensive line might not be as patchwork as initially feared. For example, Saffold and Wells were both full participants in Friday's practice and are listed as probable for the 49ers.

In Wells' case, the injury in Kansas City was muscular in nature and not a dislocation, which helps considerably in terms of a speedy return. Wells got the lion's share of the work at center Friday, but Barrett Jones and Tim Barnes got plenty of reps at center earlier in the week.

Meanwhile, Saffold continues to cope with shoulder issues that could require surgery at the end of the season. He and Mike Person shared time at left guard Friday.

"Mike understands this offense, which is big," Saffold said. "Especially for being next to Greg. He does a great job with his feet; does a good job sliding. As long as he's able to get the feel of the game down, because it's definitely gonna be a lot more physical and it's gonna be faster than practice, he'll be fine."

Before the Kansas City game, when he got 23 snaps at left guard after the line injuries took place, Person had played only four snaps on offense all season.

As for Saffold, he wasn't ready to say Friday that he would definitely be starting at left guard instead of Person.

"My biggest thing is making sure that I have myself as prepared as possible," Saffold said. "Whether that means going out and starting or even being an emergency (guy). Either way, I'm gonna be a part of the game. I'm gonna be focused."

Saffold practically lived in the trainers' room this week, spending about 16 hours getting treatment. Even so, he'll have to deal with some soreness Sunday.

"It's gonna be sore," Saffold said. "But those types of things are what you battle through anyway. It's halfway through the season — there's not a lot of people that are feeling fresh."

TITLE: Aaron Donald letting his production speak for him
BYLINE: Nick Wagoner, ESPN.com
DATE: November 6, 2014

St. Louis Rams rookie defensive tackle Aaron Donald just won't stop making noise.

"Gosh, I wish he would stop talking so much," middle linebacker James Laurinaitis said, a grin creeping across his face.

Laurinaitis is, of course, only joking. Donald is probably the last player anyone in the Rams locker room would accuse of being too verbose. To see Donald's mouth moving is to know that he's probably been asked a question.

Aaron Donald
Soft-spoken defensive tackle Aaron Donald is emerging as one of the league's top rookies.
But while Donald isn't one to run his mouth, the part about him making noise absolutely stands. It's just that Donald announces his presence on a football field by what he does, not what he says.

"Aaron is extremely quiet; I love the way he goes about it," Laurinaitis said. "He's 100 miles per hour all the time. I've never been around a D-tackle like that. When you first see him, you're like, 'Are you kidding me?' But his quickness is uncanny for the position and he's able to be disruptive. I've been extremely impressed with him. He doesn't look at the season so far as a success for himself. I know he looks at it as, 'How can I get better?' Which I can definitely appreciate."

When it comes to Donald, there's plenty for the Rams and their fans to appreciate. When the team spent the No. 13 overall pick on Donald in May's draft, nobody questioned Donald's talent but there were plenty of questions if the Rams would be better served taking a position of more pressing need such as cornerback, receiver or even quarterback.

But the Rams' biggest need then and now remains blue-chip players capable of becoming among the league's best at their respective position. Only eight games into his career, Donald has already set his trajectory toward becoming one of those players who consistently ends every season with a trip to Hawaii.

At the halfway point of his rookie season, Donald has 21 tackles, three sacks and a forced fumble. According to the Rams' coaches review of the tape, Donald also has 11 tackles for loss, which leads the team. The coaching staff also credits Donald with 16 quarterback pressures and five quarterback hits, both of which rank second on the team.

"I think his statistics reflect the season that he's having," coach Jeff Fisher said. "The tackles for losses, the consistency, the big plays. We're just going to have to watch him because the season's getting longer and longer. First-year players have difficulty with the length of the season. We'll watch his reps, but he's playing good football right now."

The statistics don't even really tell the complete story when it comes to Donald. Take last week's goal-line stand to beat San Francisco, for example. On the game-deciding fumble by quarterback Colin Kaepernick, it was Donald who got off the snap fast and quickly lifted the 49ers' center up and backwards. That helped throw off Kaepernick's ability to cleanly take the snap and he fumbled the ball and the game away.

"He's different," Laurinaitis said. "He can go ahead and do what he wants because he's that quick that he's going to disrupt the play regardless."

The soft-spoken Donald was more than willing to talk for this story, but true to his humble nature, it's hard to get him to talk about himself. For the record, he says he believes the first half of the season has flown by and while he believes he's done "pretty good," he is quick to say he has plenty of room for improvement.

As a defensive tackle, it can be hard to draw much attention to yourself, which means Donald might have an uphill climb to land in the mix for Defensive Rookie of the Year. But it's also important to note that he's only been starting and playing extended snaps since Oct. 13.

"Anytime you get more snaps, you get a better feel for the game," Donald said. "Things start to slow down and you get a lot more comfortable out there come game time. You tend to make a lot more plays and I feel like that's been happening. But like I said, I feel like I've got a lot more improvement to do and I'm just trying to continue to build."

Now that he's playing more, his numbers and his profile should increase, even if his words per minute do not.

TITLE: Rams' E.J. Gaines unfazed by changing roles
BYLINE: Nick Wagoner, ESPN.com
DATE: November 14, 2014

Aside from the fact that this is indeed his first year in the NFL, there's very little about St. Louis Rams cornerback E.J. Gaines that would let you know he's only a rookie.

Gaines' game tape offers some ups and downs as many rookies have but he's also a cornerback, a position with more volatility than any on the defense. For the most part, though, Gaines has left almost anyone paying attention impressed with how the sixth-round draft pick has adapted to the NFL.

"I feel like being a rookie playing so much you have to get better as the season goes on," Gaines said. "You can't stay the same and keep using rookie as an excuse to make a mistake. I like to get out there and try to do better each and every game."

So far, Gaines has succeeded in that quest. In nine games, Gaines has 39 tackles, a fumble recovery, an interception and five pass breakups.

For what it's worth, Pro Football Focus grades Gaines as the Rams' second-best defensive player, coincidentally only behind another rookie in defensive tackle Aaron Donald. That same grading scale rates Gaines in a tie as the 11th-most productive corner in the league.

Perhaps more impressive is how Gaines has handled everything that's been thrown at him. After the third preseason game, Gaines was thrust into the starting role when Trumaine Johnson suffered a knee injury. He has since stepped in and started every game outside.

When rookie nickel corner Lamarcus Joyner suffered a groin injury against Arizona last week, Gaines had little problem sliding into the slot and taking on a different role.

"He was fine," coach Jeff Fisher said. "He got his hands on the ball. Didn't have any problems … we didn't have to scale down the third-down package per se. He prepares mentally for it and thought he plugged in nicely.

"[It] tells you a lot about him, he's gone from outside to inside just during the course of a game."

Signs point to Gaines having to do even more work in the nickel this week against Denver with Joyner not practicing because of a groin injury. Playing in the slot against the likes of Wes Welker and Emmanuel Sanders is no easy task for any corner, never mind a rookie who hasn't spent much time playing inside where things happen faster and there's more space to cover.

But Gaines said Wednesday he doesn't expect it to be much of a problem and cited the chance to work on it more during the week as a reason he'd be better prepared to handle nickel duties than he was a week ago.

"It's a lot on my plate but I feel like I'm definitely ready for it," Gaines said. "I try not to look at myself like a rookie. I try to play like a vet. I do as many things as I can like a veteran to help this football team, help this defense out."

ST. LOUIS RAMS FEATURE CLIPS

TITLE: T.J. McDonald carving his own path
BYLINE: Nick Wagoner, ESPN.com
DATE: November 20, 2014

The recent ascent of the St. Louis Rams' defense has been expected if not overdue. But it's no coincidence it has taken off in recent weeks at the same time some of its young cornerstones have begun coming into their own.

Perhaps none of those young players has made more strides over the past three weeks or so than safety T.J. McDonald.

Sometimes, that has meant putting up impressive numbers as he did two weeks ago against Arizona with nine tackles and a sack. Sometimes, it's more about the physical presence he provides, such as last week against Denver when he had five tackles and two pass breakups, but ensured that Denver pass-catchers would feel every bit of them.

On a defense loaded with more familiar names like end Robert Quinn, linebackers James Laurinaitis and Alec Ogletree, and defensive tackle Aaron Donald, it's McDonald's performance from the safety spot that has elevated the Rams' defense into one of the league's best over the past three weeks.

"It's just been tremendous growth, especially this whole season and the past few weeks in particular," fellow safety Rodney McLeod said. "The guy is showing up in every phase, whether it's special teams and on defense, tackling, pass-breakups. We've got to work on his hands a little bit, but other than that, the guy has been doing a great job for us. It's just great to see him making plays back there at a time like this when we are trying to make a push for the playoffs and we need everybody to step up and make plays for us."

In many ways, McDonald's play has been what was expected when the Rams used a third-round choice on him in the 2013 NFL draft. McDonald quickly claimed a starting spot and earned praise for how fast he was able to pick up the system. A fracture in his leg limited him to 10 games as a rookie with mixed results.

But when the Rams hired defensive coordinator Gregg Williams in the offseason, many believed McDonald was a perfect safety for his system. At 6-foot-2, 217 pounds, McDonald is the prototype of a Williams safety who can be a force near the line of scrimmage offering an additional hammer in the run game with emerging blitz skills. That McDonald wasn't known for his coverage abilities didn't figure to matter given Williams' propensity for playing with a lot of single-high safety looks, a look that would generally feature McLeod on the back end.

True to that idea, McDonald spent much of the early part of the season near the line of scrimmage, defending the run and bringing the blitz. Through the Rams' first eight games, McDonald had almost an identical split in snaps played in the run box (230) and snaps played on the back end (221).

What's interesting, though, is how much more McDonald has been asked to do in coverage over the past three weeks. Although that lines up with the arrival of Mark Barron via trade, Barron has only been heavily involved in one of those games.

According to Pro Football Focus' metrics, McDonald has played 144 of his 209 snaps over the past three weeks in coverage, which works out to about 69 percent. For what it's worth, McDonald has earned his highest grades in coverage from PFF over that same span.

"I feel like I am recognizing things faster and I am more comfortable in the defense," McDonald said. "I feel like I'm on my toes and playing downhill and having a lot of fun playing.

"I think just like any new defense, anything that's new, you have got to understand what your job is, and that was the first thing. Everybody was trying to make sure they did their job. I felt like we got a good grip on what our coaches want from us. Then it becomes 'what is the offense going to do?' Then we put that stuff together and really focus on what is going on with them."

Against the Broncos, quarterback Peyton Manning targeted McDonald seven times and came away with three completions for just 6 yards with a long of 3 yards. Even on those rare completions, McDonald was quick to lower the boom and finished with a pair of pass-breakups.

It was the type of performance that left many making the seemingly endless and easy comparisons to his father, former six-time All Pro safety Tim McDonald. But as McDonald continues to string together solid performances, maybe it's time to start letting what he does on the field stand on its own.

"I have definitely walked in his shadow for a long time," McDonald said. "I can't say I've been trying to stray away from that, but at the same time you want to be your own man and you definitely want to be known as, I want people to one day be able to say 'That's T.J.'s dad' not 'I'm Tim's son.' I have a long ways to go. I'm in no rush, I'm just trying to get better, have fun and play ball."

TITLE: Zuerlein's big day nets NFC honor
BYLINE: Joe Lyons, St. Louis Post-Dispatch
DATE: November 20, 2014

In a strong game for both defensive units, Rams kicker Greg Zuerlein literally provided the difference in Sunday's 22-7 victory over the visiting Denver Broncos with 16 points on five field goals and an extra point.
On Wednesday, Zuerlein was named the NFC Special Teams Player of the Week. It was the third such honor for Zuerlein, who was named twice as a rookie in 2012.

"Any time you can win an award, it's great," the third-year pro from Missouri Western said. "But that's not what you set out to do. You go out to do what you can to help your team and that's what I'm happiest about, that I did my job and helped my team.

"Haven't had a lot of chances lately — that's just the way it goes sometimes — but we got a bunch on Sunday and, yeah, it was a good time."

After successful kicks from 37, 29 and 22 yards in the opening three quarters, respectively, Zuerlein finished strong Sunday with fourth-quarter kicks from 55 and 53 yards to close out the Rams' most complete win of the season.

"In pregame, he was really crushing it, and I think having a kick each quarter helped him keep that going," Rams special teams coordinator John Fassel said. "The (honor) is very well-earned for a kid who works very hard and really has been very good all season long."

Zuerlein, who remembers kicking five field goals in a game as a college senior, has made all 20 extra points and is 15 of 18 on field goals this season, going three for three from 20-29 yards, seven for eight from 30-39 yards, two for two from 40-49 yards and three for five from 50-plus yards.

"He had one bad hit, to the right, but the other misses, he hit great balls, straight with good contact and just started out a little left," Fassel explained.

Zuerlein joins Jeff Wilkins (Oct. 1, 2000 vs. San Diego) as the only Rams' kickers to go five for five on field goals in a game. And according to NFL Communications, Zuerlein also is one of just three kickers in NFL history to go five for five with multiple kicks from 53 yards or longer.

"He's a student of the game and takes a great deal of pride in his putting the ball where it needs to be," Hekker said. "If he's not hitting the ball correctly, he'll check his approach, his steps, where his feet are landing. He's constantly making adjustments."

Zuerlein, who had touchbacks on five of seven kickoffs Sunday, said consistency is always the goal.

"You really have to get into your own world and focus on what you do," he said. "You're going to miss some — nobody's perfect — but when you do, you have to let it go and try to make sure you're ready for that next kick."

TITLE: Davin Joseph sheds the dreads for fresh start
BYLINE: Nick Wagoner, ESPN.com
DATE: November 20, 2014

St. Louis Rams right guard Davin Joseph didn't practice Wednesday afternoon for what the Rams called a "coach's decision" also known as a veteran's day off. At least, we think he didn't practice.

It might have been hard to tell because Joseph was hard to recognize. Fresh off his best performance as a Ram against the Broncos last week, a performance which earned him a game ball from coach Jeff Fisher, Joseph showed up without his trademark dreadlocks.

The same dreadlocks that Joseph has been sporting for the past 12 years. To outside observers, it was a shock. To Joseph, it was even stranger.

"I feel naked right now," Joseph said, laughing. "I feel naked. I'm getting used to it. I had to buy a comb yesterday. I've got to get used to it. It's not easy."

With Joseph's 31st birthday coming up on Saturday and a new start in St. Louis, Joseph said he began thinking of the change on Tuesday and then decided to pull the trigger on making the change. According to Joseph, the haircut took about two hours with constant reminders that this is the time of year when people are usually trying to grow more hair in any effort possible to help stay warm.

Along the way, Joseph did plenty of second guessing.

"I had some thoughts of 'I don't know if this is the right move,' but once you start you can't stop," Joseph said. "So it's just like let's go with it. It's some change."

It sounds silly but Joseph is being quite serious when he says it's a big change.

For example, Joseph said he hasn't really been able to wear a hat in years and had plans to go hat shopping on Wednesday night just to see what it was like. And though he can continue to wear his same helmet, he spent some time Wednesday figuring out how much air he needed to add to it to make it fit right. When he returns the practice field, likely Thursday afternoon, he'll give that a trial run to see how it works.

"It's a big change but a good change though," Joseph said. "I'm excited about it."

For excited as the eight-year veteran might be about his new look, he's even more fired up about what he believes is an offensive line that's starting to gain traction. The Rams rushed for 131 yards against Denver's top ranked rush defense last week in no small part because of Joseph's improved production at right guard.

The always humble and affable Joseph made it clear he didn't want any individual credit.

"It was a good performance for the entire group, coming off a couple tough weeks we fought back last week against a really good defensive line," Joseph said. "We had some positive things so we're looking to just keep the momentum going forward."

Dreads or no dreads, that's the only recognition Joseph wants.
